WASHINGTON.

President Grant Declares for Conkling as His Successor.

CHANDLER ON BELL.

General Babcock and the Secrets of the Attorney General's Office.

ANOTHER RECUSANT WITNESS.

Proposed Purification of Our Indian Service.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONY—SECRETS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL PIERREPONT'S OFFICE—HAD BABCOCK ACCESS TO THEM.

Ex-Senator Henderson was before the Committee on Whiskey Frauds to-day again, and some of his testimony was important, as likely to lead to other developments. He testified that Secretary Bristow had told him on a certain occasion that he was satisfied that Babcock or Horace Porter saw all the evidence against Babcock, and he was of the impression that Solicitor Wilson had told him substantially the same thing.

Mr. Henderson testified also that Mr. Pierrepont had said to him, concerning the evidence against Babcock, that the President was always better informed about it than he was, and that when Mr. Pierrepont went to tell the President anything about it, he always found him already informed. Mr. Henderson added that Mr. Pierrepont said to him he was puzzled to account for this, but concluded that he was kept informed by one Fox, who was a member of the Grand Jury which investigated the Babcock case and found the indictment against him.

Mr. Henderson will complete his testimony to-morrow before the committee, and it is understood that Mr. Dyer will return from St. Louis in a few days and will be further examined. It is probable that the committee will also summon Secretary Bristow, Solicitor Wilson and Horace Porter.

Mr. Henderson is understood to say that the letter of the Attorney General to district attorneys had a very demoralizing influence on the whiskey prosecutions in St. Louis. It is believed that Mr. Brodhead, who has been summoned, will testify to the same effect.

PURIFICATION OF THE INDIAN SERVICE.

The Indian Ring are desperate to-day and are beginning to lose their temper. They see a very valuable prize slipping out of their hands and the danger makes them frantic. It may as well be understood by the country that the struggle for the purification of the Indian service has begun, and that this struggle is very fierce. The Indian Ring will leave no means unused to crush out the attempt to transfer the service to the War Department. They have no hope of further stealings if it goes there. The prospect for this much needed reform is not too hopeful. Several men of undoubted honesty of purpose, but equally undoubted ignorance of this question, have unfortunately ranged themselves against the transfer. The friends of economy and reform need to bring all their influence to bear in favor of it, for there are not a few weak and ill-informed men in the House who may be misled into a wrong vote unless they feel the impulse of the popular will. The transfer of the Indians to the War Department will save $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 annually to the government, will cause the Indians to be honestly dealt with, will remove one of the most corrupt and demoralizing evils within the government, and will work as the beginning of a general Civil Service reform. That is the whole question, and every honest man who has studied the Indian question favors the transfer.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONENT.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

PRESIDENT GRANT FOR CONKLING—A COLORED CONGRESSMAN AS AN INTERVIEWER.

Among the six colored men who stood by the President in the House on the third term resolution was Jere Haralson, of Selma, Ala., Representative from the First district of that State. Mr. Haralson, according to his official biography, was born a slave in Georgia in 1846, and on the death of his first master was sold on the auction block and subsequently taken to Alabama. Becoming free in 1865 he educated himself, was twice elected to the State Legislature, and in 1874 was elected to the present Congress. Every square inch on his back shows the scars of the whip of his slavery days.

Mr. Haralson called on the President, and notwithstanding his illness was cordially invited to a conference. He went chiefly to talk over the matter of the republican officials in his district, and referred principally to the removal of Colonel Wichersham, the Postmaster at Mobile. He then commenced, at the instance of the President, to talk freely of the condition of affairs in the South and as to how it would go in the next Presidential campaign.

Mr. Haralson avowed himself to the President a strong Grant man and went on to explain that the people of his State were very much divided up between Bristow, Morton and Conkling, and since the recent decision of the Supreme Court on the Enforcement act, the colored people were very much staggered and did not know what to do, as the democratic Southern country papers were full of the cry of "No more force bills!" "No more nigger voting!" "No more military rule!" as a republican Supreme Court had decided upon it.

The President was very much interested and was exceedingly stirred up and manifested his feelings quite impressively to Mr. Haralson. The President said that Mr. Morton was a very good republican and a very strong man, but Mr. Conkling was also a strong man and had always been upright and consistent, as well as never having had his reputation assailed in any way. The President wanted to know how the delegation from his State would go and for what candidate? To this Mr. Haralson answered he could not really say; that Mr. Morton was very highly thought of, and so was Mr. Conkling, as well as Mr. Bristow; but the colored people would not think of Mr. Blaine.

The President reiterated his conviction that Mr. Conkling would make an excellent President, and Mr. Haralson said to him, "Why, Mr. President, are you going to electioneer for him?"

To this the President signified in answer that he was decidedly in favor of Mr. Conkling, as he thought he would make the strongest republican candidate.

Mr. Haralson went on to say that, having just returned from his State, he could say that there was a preference for Bristow, because the old whig element, who did not like the democratic leaders, said that "though Mr. Bristow had fought in the Union army, yet he was a Southern man, and would be more favorable to the South." Besides this the colored people were set seriously to thinking how they would be affected in their surroundings by sustaining a radical candidate, and they were impressed that there might be a question of policy for them to vote for that republican candidate who would arouse the least animosities among the Southern people. The decision of the Supreme Court on the Enforcement act ought to be explained by the Judges or in some way, for it was all mispresented to and misunderstood by the colored people now, and they did not know what to do.

The President was still deeply interested, and signified that he would do all in his power to encourage and protect the colored people. He would not make the removal contemplated which was pressed by Senator Spencer, unless there were some charges against the official.

The interview closed just as Mr. Haralson was getting to the most important part of the consultation, in reference to the future of the Southern States, but it is to be resumed at the desire of the President, in a few days, when Mr. Haralson says, on account of the very serious aspect of the destiny of the South, he is desirous of going over the whole matter, as he has found the President, to his surprise, so deeply interested and willing to know and provide for emergencies.

Mr. Haralson spoke in a very cautious and measured, but extremely intelligent manner, through the whole interview, and was extremely pleased with the President's willingness to listen to him and the avidity with which he received the explanations made to him. Mr. Haralson also says that if President Grant is, as he avows himself, for Conkling for next President, of course it will give Conkling great strength. Senator Conkling, he says, is looked upon among his people as the second Grant.

A HERALD CORRESPONDENT AS A RECUSANT WITNESS—MR. PAGE, OF CALIFORNIA, SEEKS INFORMATION WHICH WOULD NOT BENEFIT HIM—HIS CONNECTION WITH AN INDIAN RING.

And now a HERALD correspondent is to be arraigned at the bar of the House as a recusant witness. It happens that among the attachés of the Washington bureau of the HERALD this winter is the correspondent detailed by the HERALD, and sent to Dakota last summer, to investigate the Indian frauds, concerning which report was then so rife. This gentleman was asked by the chairman of the Indian Committee, the other day, to give any facts that he might know touching Indian irregularities. The first day that the correspondent appeared, Mr. Page, of California, who is a member of the committee, demanded his name, and eventually, on another day, grew indignant, and protested against his giving suggestions to the chairman, and requested that he be put on the stand. To-day the correspondent gave a detailed statement of the frauds at Fort Peck and other places, whereupon Mr. Page smiled, said it was no evidence, and then began a cross-examination, trying with singular simplicity to show that the HERALD investigated frauds for political purposes and ordered its correspondents to write against the administration. He also tried to obtain knowledge of the business management of the HERALD, the salaries it paid and the names of those who have furnished information to the correspondent. As the witness refused to reveal the source of his information, Mr. Page ordered that he be brought before the bar of the House.

The following is a sample of the interrogatories put to the correspondent by Mr. Page:—"What were your instructions when you were detailed to investigate the Indian frauds?" "By whom were you sent?" "What is the political character of the HERALD?" "I am not talking about the majority of the editors; what is the political character of the HERALD?" "Is the HERALD a republican or democratic paper?" "Is it opposed to the present administration?" Did you ever write anything favorable to the administration that was published in the HERALD?" "Is it among your instructions to write anything favorable to the administration?" "Did you ever write any article favorable to the administration?", "Where are those articles?" "Can you call my attention to any article that you have written within the last year favorable to the administration." "Will you do so?" "Were your instructions to write articles attacking the administration?" "Did you receive any assistance from the democratic party in this House in the shape of an appointment to any committee duty of any kind?" "Did you not occupy a clerkship in a committee?" "Did you send a despatch to the HERALD the day you were subpœnaed before this committee?" "Did you write any despatch that was sent there for publication?" "Do you remember of sending one after you were subpœnaed to appear before this committee, in which you stated substantially that the testimony before the committee this morning causes Congressman Page considerable uneasiness, or that the recent developments before the Indian Committee have caused Congressman Page, of California, considerable uneasiness?" "You will tell us about it any how." "Your orders do not tell you how to send despatches?" "That is the order you received, not to tell how much salary you received, nor from whom you received it?" "I am asking if you sent this article or gave information upon which it was sent." "You don't want to answer the question at all, well did you send the article referred to?" "I will send up and get a paper if necessary, if you want to know what article it is; I ask you if you sent that article?" "I have not expressed any opinion as to whether you are right or not; have you the original article you sent? There was a good deal more in the original article than was printed, was there not?" "Much more?" "Did you give the information that caused that despatch to be sent, that the testimony before the Indian Committee had caused Congressman Page considerable uneasiness?" "Upon what authority?" "In what way did you think Mr. Page, of California, was uneasy?" "Uneasy on what ground?" "You said the testimony before the committee had caused Congressman Page considerable uneasiness; what did you mean by that?" "Who told you that; I want his name?" "Where was this conversation held; at whose house?" "At whose house?" repeated. "You were in his house, and he gave you information, and you can't remember the name; what is the number of the house?" "What is the name of the man?" "Where did you meet?" "Where did you meet?" repeated. "Where did you meet at the time he gave you this information?" "You stated a moment since that it was in his house. Would you know that man if you should see him again?" "Do you know where he lives; where his home is?" "It don't make any difference; you are to answer this question or I will report you to the House of Representatives. I insist upon an answer to this question, and if you don't give it I'll present you to the House of Representatives this morning. Give us the name of the man." "Did he state anything else?"

"Who is that other Congressman?" "Who is it?" "You stated he told you about another Congressman; what did you hear?" "What was it?" "Who was the Congressman?" "I want a direct unequivocal answer to my question; I want you to answer my question; who was this Congressman referred to by your informant?" "Do you know it; did he give the name?" "Did he mention the name of any Congressman?" "What was it?" "What is the name of the Congressman?" "Did he give the name of the man?" "What man do you think he said?" "I want this witness to be instructed to answer that question. This was the same party that gave you the information about Mr. Page, of California; what was this man's name?" "What is the name of the party with whom you had a conversation when Mr. Page's name was mentioned in connection with the Indian Ring?" "I ask this witness to confine himself to this question?" "I ask the Chairman of this Committee to insist on an answer to the question. What is the name of the party with whom you had the conversation when Mr. Page's name was mentioned in connection with the Indian Ring?" Question repeated. "The Chairman will unquestionably instruct the witness to give the name of the party." "Is this your handwriting?"

Correspondent—Yes, sir; that is my handwriting.

Page—You presented that to a member of this committee?

Correspondent—I presented the slip to Judge Wilshire; it was volunteered when Mr. Page was trying to get a definition of the term Indian Ring.

Here follows the slip referred to:—

"Page ought to know that the combination that bids highest and always gets the contract is a ring. The witness ought to force the point on him."

At this the correspondent was notified that he would be brought before the bar of the House to-morrow morning.

Mr. Page will find it difficult to prove that the answers to these questions are pertinent to any interest the government has in the case, and will hardly dare to swear so as a preliminary to enforcing answers to his interrogatories.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

SECRETARY CHANDLER TELLS WHAT HE KNOWS OF DETECTIVE BELL—HOW HE WAS PAID A MONTH'S SALARY WITHOUT RENDERING ANY SERVICE, AND DISMISSED BECAUSE THE PRESIDENT THOUGHT HIM A SCOUNDREL.

Hon. Zachariah Chandler, Secretary of the Interior, appeared to-day before the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department, and was sworn as a witness. The letter of appointment of Charles S. Bell, dated January 15, 1876, was shown, and Mr. Chandler identified it as a regular official document. Mr. Chandler said that Bell's name was first mentioned by the President at a Cabinet meeting. He (the Secretary) had experienced considerable difficulty in securing a chief of the Secret Service. He had discharged the one he had, and asked the members of the Cabinet to help him get a good chief. A few days after the President had mentioned Bell as a spy in the service of the army during the war, Bell called at the Interior Department with a card from the President. The latter had said that he would make a good man on the force, but not as chief. The card simply announced that Bell was the man the President had told him about. Witness told Bell he was not prepared then to make changes, but to come again. He called several times in several weeks, and witness said he believed he had met Bell twice during that time.

One day General Hurlbut was sitting in witness' office, at the Interior Department, when Bell's card came in; witness threw it carelessly upon the table and told the messenger to say to Bell he was engaged. General Hurlbut says:—"Bell, why I know that man. He was a spy for me, he enlisted in the rebel army as a private, stayed in the service seven months, during which time he was promoted to be a sergeant." Witness said:—"If he could stay in the rebel army seven months as a spy and keep his neck out of the halter he must be a smart fellow and ought to make a good detective;" witness appointed him more on what General Hurlburt said than upon the recommendation of the President; witness was under the impression that Bell handed him a card, but failed to find it since, and may have been mistaken; witness had never spoken to General Babcock or Colonel Luckey about it; Bell was discharged February 15, 1876, after one month's service; witness said it came about in this way:—he went to the Cabinet meeting one day earlier than the other members and found the President sitting there with Bell's name on the table; the President asked him if he had such a man in his employ, and the answer was "Yes;" the President then said that Bell was a scoundrel and ought to be dismissed; witness dismissed him as soon as he got back to the office because he believed him to be a scoundrel; the President told him that Bell had applied to some one to certify that he was in the government employ to furnish information for or against Babcock, he did not care which.

Mr. Chandler said he never saw the publication of the cipher printed in the NEW YORK HERALD until after this investigation began; witness said he was not aware that Bell had performed any service for the Pension Bureau; Le Barnes, chief of the secret service, came to the witness at the end of the first month and said Bell wanted his account passed for expenses; Mr. Le Barnes said he did not know of any service performed by Mr. Bell; that when he was first taken on Mr. Bell said he had some private matters to attend to that would perhaps require a week's absence, and that he stayed away a month; the witness told Mr. Le Barnes not to audit the account until Mr. Bell proved that he had rendered the service, the witness says Mr. Bell has since deceived Assistant Secretary Cowan into indorsing the following upon a card to Mr. Le Barnes:—"Mr. Bell has been legitimately employed under orders and is entitled to his allowance per diem. Will Colonel Le Barnes please adjust the account?"—the impression of the witness was that the voucher for the payment of Mr. Bell came in a batch of vouchers, though it may have been brought in specially; he is not in the habit of reading the vouchers because there are so many that it takes two hours a day sometimes just to sign them; he does not believe the Bell case was ever mentioned specially and distinctly, though it possibly might have been; he said it did not seem probable, for if the witness had noticed Mr. Bell's voucher he would not have paid it; the witness was not told by Mr. Bell that he had gone to New York on the Babcock matter; if he had not done any other service than that he ought not to have been paid; there was no evidence except his word that he had rendered any service; on February 12 the Commissioner of Indian Affairs sent a number of cases to Le Barnes for investigation: on February 13 Le Barnes turned them over to Bell, with instructions to work them up; on February 15 Bell was directed by Le Barnes to return all the papers turned over from the Commissionor of Indian Affairs; this order was received by Bell in St. Louis; witness had no intimation that Bell was employed to assist Babcock in his defence at St. Louis; he discharged Bell because he believed him to be a scoundrel; witness knew of no subscription being taken up to defray the expenses of General Babcock at St. Louis; he received a letter from Mr. Borie, of Philadelphia, weeks after the acquittal of General Babcock, to the effect that General Babcock's trial expenses were about $40,000; that he was utterly ruined, and that, as he was a young man, he could overcome his difficulty if set upon his feet and encouraged by his friends; Mr. Chandler then sent General Babcock a check for $1,000; when Le Barnes finally told witness that Bell had something to do with the Babcock trial, he told Le Barnes not to pay him, unless he found him in legitimate employment of the Pension Bureau; he did not know that Bell had been paid until inquiry after reading his testimony before this committee.

Mr. Danford read seriatim the questions and answers given in Bell's testimony, at considerable length, relating to conversations Bell says he had with Mr. Chandler about the Babcock case. He branded the testimony in whole and in part, so far as it referred to him, as absolutely and unqualifiedly false; he said Mr. Luckey never had a conversation with him about Bell's connection with the Babcock case.

HEADQUARTERS OF TEK ARMY.

By direction of the President the following order was issued to-day:—

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5, 1876.

The Adjutant General will promulgate the following order for the information of all concerned:—

The headquarters of the army are hereby re-established, and hereafter, in time of peace, shall be at Washington city, and all orders and instructions relative to military operations or affecting the military control and discipline of the army issued by the President through the Secretary of War shall be promulgated through the General of the Army.

ALPHONSO TAFT, Secretary of War.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

In the Senate, after action on several unimportant matters, Mr. Edmunds, (rep.) of Vermont, called attention to the rule in reference to the oath to be administered to the members of the Senate prior to its sitting as

A COURT OF IMPEACHMENT.

On his motion it was agreed to request the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to attend the Senate at one P. M. and administer that oath. For this purpose the Chair named Messrs. Edmunds and Thurman a committee to wait on the Chief Justice. Some further business of minor interest followed.

The hour of one o'clock having arrived Messrs. Edmunds and Thurman, the committee appointed to wait upon the Chief Justice, appeared in the Senate Chamber with the Chief Justice, and escorted him to the seat provided for him at the right of the presiding officer. Mr. Ferry, President, pro tem., then announced that the Senate would proceed, according to its rules, to consider the articles of impeachment against W. W. Belknap, late Secretary of War. Chief Justice Waite then administered the following oath to Mr. Ferry, President pro tem. of the Senate, and afterward to all the Senators present, who were called in alphabetical order in groups of six:—

You solemnly swear that in all things appertaining to the trial of the impeachment of W. W. Belknap, late Secretary of War, now pending, you will do impartial justice according to the constitution and the laws, so help you God.

The Senators as their names were called advanced to the desk of the presiding officer where the Chief Justice stood to administer the oath. After the first six Senators had been called, Mr. Morton said if there was no objection he would suggest that all Senators be sworn at one time standing in their places.

Mr. THURMAN (dem.), of Ohio, objected. He said there might be some doubt about verifying Senators who were sworn; he thought the Senate had better follow the usual custom.

The senators who were absent, and therefore not sworn, were Messrs. Alcorn, Allison, Burnside, Caperton, Christiancy, Conkling, Conover, Dennis, English, Goldthwaite, Howe, Johnson, Jones, of Nevada; Morrill, of Maine; Patterson, Ransom, Robertson and Wadleigh.

The CHIEF JUSTICE then retired in charge of the committee, Messrs. Edmunds and Thurman.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, (rep.) of N. J., submitted an order directing the Secretary of the Senate to notify the House of Representatives that the Senate is now organized for the trial of the impeachment of W. W. Belknap, late Secretary of War, and is ready to receive the managers of impeachment on the part of the House of Representatives at the bar of the Senate.

At twenty minutes to two o'clock the managers appeared at the main entrance of the Senate Chamber, and were announced by Sergeant-at-Arms French.

The CHAIR directed the Sergeant at-Arms to escort the managers to the seats provided for them. After they were seated Mr. FERRY, President pro tem., said:—"Gentlemen managers, the Senate is now organized for the trial of the impeachment of W. W. Belknap, late Secretary of War."

Mr. LORD, chairman of the Board of Managers, said:—Mr. PRESIDENT—We pray for the issue of process against W. W. Belknap, late Secretary of War, to answer the articles of impeachment presented.

Mr. EDMUNDS (rep.) of Vt., submitted the following, which was agreed to:—

Ordered, that a summons be issued, as required by the rules of procedure and practice in the Senate when sitting in the trial of impeachment, to W. W. Belknap, returnable on Monday, the 17th day of the present month, at one P. M.

Mr. LORD—That is satisfactory to the managers.

The managers then retired.

After debate on technical matters relative to the trial, the Senate, as a Court of Impeachment, adjourned to the 17th inst., at half past twelve P. M.

POSTAGE ON MERCHANDISE.

The Senate then resumed legislative business, and on motion of Mr. HAMLIN, (rep.) of Me., took up the bill to fix the rate of postage on third class mail matter. He submitted an amendment requiring the post office at the place of mailing, if the sender is known, to collect from him any deficiency which may be discovered before sending the matter forward by mail. This being agreed to, Mr. BOGY, (dem.) of Mo., opposed the bill as increasing the postage on third class matter in proportion to the distance.

Mr. HAMLIN at great length advocated the passage of the bill, and urged that it was the duty of Congress to frame such a schedule of postages as would make the Post Office Department self sustaining. He said the postal service had not been a charge upon the Treasury from 1789 to 1841. Now there is an annual deficiency of from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000, while the letter mails paid, besides the cost of their transmission and delivery, about $5,000,000 a year. If merchandise was made to pay its actual cost of transmission, the private correspondence of the country could be carried at two cents per letter. and the department made self sustaining.

At twenty minutes past four P. M. the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

Mr. RANDALL, (dem.) of Pa., offered a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to furnish the House with an itemized account of the amount expended under the item of $300,000 appropriated for light and fuel for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876. Adopted.

Mr. COX, (dem.) of N. Y., from the Committee on Banking and Currency, reported the bill to regulate the winding up of national banks. He explained that the object of the bill was to facilitate liquidation, and that insolvent banks may be honestly and speedily closed up in the interest of the public. Passed.

Mr. HUBBELL, (rep.) of Mich., from the Committee on Banking and Currency, reported back adversely the bill fixing the legal rate of interest on national money throughout the United States at not exceeding six per cent per annum and affixing penalties for its violation. Pending action on the bill the morning hour expired.

CARE OF THE INDIANS.

The House then went into committee of the whole, Mr. Blackburn, of Kentucky, in the chair, on the bill to transfer the Indian Bureau from the Interior to the War Department.

Mr. SPARKS, (dem.) of Ill., spoke in favor of the bill and said that out of sixty army officers examined by the Military Committee all but one advocated the transfer, and that out of twenty-nine persons examined by the Indian Committee but eight opposed the transfer. He denied that the transfer of the Indian Bureau would produce war, and quoted from the testimony of General Sherman and other officers of high rank in favor of the transfer in the interest of economy and peace.

Mr. Cox opposed the bill, suggesting that if the present system was hell, and the Indian was hell, and the lowest deep was in the Interior Department, the still lower deep that was threatening to devour him was to be found in the War Department. He recommended the Canadian Indian policy, under which some 85,000 Indians cost at the rate of $2 35 each, while under our system they cost some $60 each. If the Canadian policy were sound, perhaps a policy of peace or economy could be found for the United States. He asked whether the Canadian policy was successful because the Canadian Indian agents were honest and capable or whether it was because they were treated as an integral part of the British Empire? What was wanted was not the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department, but honest agents. He thought that there ought to be wisdom enough to devise remedies for bureau mismanagement, purge the system of its putrescence, punish crime and compel accountability without the transfer of the functions of civil government to the military. The War Department he declared, was honey-combed with fraud; with impeachment hanging over the late head of that department, and with a soldier chief magistrate reckless of just accountability, the House was asked to place the Indian bureau under a system that connected so much fraud with force. If the Indian agencies were to be turned over to the army simply because honest agents could not be found in civil life, why stop there? Why not give the army control of the Land Office or of the collection of internal revenue? He endorsed the recommendation of the Indian Commission appointed in 1867 to confide the Indian service to an independent department, and to let its head be a member of the Cabinet. Then the service would be emancipated from its confused condition; disturbances, outbreaks and wars would then be the exception, not the rule. He referred to General Sheridan's campaign against the Indians in the winter of 1868 as an expensive one, and its climax (the assassination of Black Kettle's bands and Cheyennes) as an outrage that had no parallel in barbarity. In conclusion he declared the peaceful policy as that which was kindest and best.

The comittee then rose.

Mr. MILLS, (dem.) of Texas, introduced a bill relative to the rank of navy officers. Referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The House then, at half-past four, took a recess until half-past seven, the evening session being for the consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill.

EMMA MINE.

MR. PARK TELLS THE STORY OF HIS NEGOTIATIONS IN ENGLAND.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

Trenor W. Park testified before the Committee on Foreign Affairs to-day, relating the circumstances attending the purchase of the Emma mine by himself, Baxter and others. During their examination of the mine previous to purchasing he gathered specimens of the ore and took them to the Assay office at Salt Lake. There he learned that the ore would pay about $120 a ton, or £37 if delivered in England. He considered it a cheap mine at $5,000,000. From the date of their purchase in April to the last of August the value of the ore taken out was $895,000 gross, and the expenses of working the mine $28,629. The witness then related his proceedings in England, where he went to sell the mine. Shortly after his arrival there Fisher & Coates wanted to buy the mine without delay. They said they already knew about its value from sales of ore from it that had been made in England. He thought this was going rather fast, but after honestly telling Coates he did not know the present condition of the mine, but could only vouch for its past condition, he finally yielded to the urgent request of Coates to name his figures, and told him he would sell for £400,000 in cash for one-half of it, £500,000 in fully paid up shares for the other half; Park told Coates that he, of course, expected the purchase would be contingent upon a satisfactory report on the mine, to be made by some scientific expert or experts of the purchasers' own selection; subsequently Coates and the English parties represented selected Professor Silliman to examine and report upon the mine; Park did not suggest Silliman's name or mention him at all; Coates told witness Silliman was selected as being "the Sir Robert Murchison of America;" Park inquired of Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co. as to the ability of Coates and his partner to carry through the arrangement for the purchase, which they had agreed to as soon as he named the figures above stated, and was told in reply that it was doubtful if they could carry it through unless they had the famous Albert Grant at their back; witness did not know whether this was so or not. The witness then related facts attending the failure of Coates to comply with the terms of the negotiation, and said that Pollard informed him it was out of the question for Coates to raise £400,000. Coates had introduced him to Albert Grant, with whom he and Senator Stewart subsequently had an interview at Brighton by invitation. Grant was willing to undertake to put the Emma Mine on the market, provided the venders paid all expenses in the event of failure. Park objected to this, saying he would take the mine away with him, unless he could sell at his own price. Subsequent events were related at length, including the guarantee of title to the mine, which was given by Park and Baxter, and also the facts connected with the formation of the London Emma Mine Company. If there was anything dishonest in the sale of the Emma Mine in England, or any fraud, or sharp practice between gentlemen, the witness said, under his oath, that he knew nothing whatever about it; the mine was worth now as much as it was sold for. The witness received the unanimous vote of the Board of Directors for the fairness of the manner in which he conducted the business; the witness referred to the scandalous reports which had been circulated in London for the purpose of injuring the stock, which led to the sending to Utah of Mr. Williams to examine the mine, in order, at the request of the witness, to verify the truth of his statement, and of Silliman's report; the telegram sent by Williams to Park from Utah was to the effect that not only was Silliman's report verified, but the discoveries of ore were beyond what had been previously represented; Williams then bought 1,000 shares of the Emma Mine stock.

The committee adjourned till to-morrow.

NAVY INTELLIGENCE.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1876.

The United States ship Supply sailed from Leghorn, March 20, for Gibraltar. She had received on board, at Civita Vecchia and Leghorn, all the contributions to the Centennial Exhibition, and also the naval monument, with the exception of one block, which was too large to go in the hold. It will be brought over by the bark George Peabody. This monument, a memorial to the officers, marines and seamen of the navy who fell in defence of the Union, was originally intended to be erected at Annapolis, but now it will in all probability be placed in Washington. The Supply was to meet the Franklin at Gibraltar.

The Shawmut and Ajax left Key West for Port Royal April 2, and the Swatara and Mahopac were there on the 4th inst., and expected to sail for Port Royal on the 6th. There has been no fever on any of the vessels, as has been stated. The Ajax had a case of small-pox on board, which probably gave rise to the report.

THE DIRECT CABLE.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 5, 1876.

The steamer Farraday, having undergone repairs, will shortly leave to repair the broken Direct cable.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Tammany Republican Alliance in Danger.

BOSS KELLY TO BE ROUTED.

The Debate in the Senate on the New Capitol.

ALBANY, April 5, 1876.

It becomes more and more apparent every day that the infamous bargain between the Custom House and Tammany Hall, entered into in New York in the early part of the winter, is to be supported during the balance of the session by the Tammany members and those republicans whom the Custom House controls. Instead of attending to their business in New York, for which they are paid, Custom House wirepullers have been of late paying almost daily visits to the Capitol for the purpose of giving suggestions to their dupes in the Assembly, and instructing them as to what they should do and what they should leave undone in order that Tammany Hall may hold its own in New York, and the Custom House bargain makers be able to carry out their part of the contract. As yet none of the hangers-on of Tammany, who look up to John Kelly as their master, have put in an appearance, and it is said now that the reason for their absence is that the "Boss" has been given to understand by his republican allies that their presence here would do more harm than good, and that the gang selected by Wickham and Arthur will be able to do all the wirepulling that will be required to crown their plan of campaign with success. But the best laid plans of even Tammany tricksters gang aft a-gley sometimes. They have already received a check which has, for the time being, completely demoralized them. They succeeded during the past week in getting certain bills through the lower house which Comptroller Green and the anti-Tammany democrats, as well as the republicans in New York who will not be led by the nose by Cornell or his lieutenants, were opposed to in the shape they were passed, and they at once came to the conclusion that it would be all plain sailing thereafter to the close of the session. But they COUNTED WITHOUT THEIR HOST.

The name of Tammany is not a very attractive one to many of the country republicans, and they do not relish the idea of being classed as Tammany republicans. The result will be a bitter fight before the session is many days older between the independent republicans of both houses and those members of their own party who are anxious to cringe the knee to the Custom House magnates, that thrift may follow fawning and Tammany office holders kept in power. The best indication thus far that "Boss" Kelly's bargain with the republicans, who have consented to do his dirty work, is not all powerful, was given by the favorable report of the bill which takes away from the Tammany Mayor the power to appoint the successors of those officials whose terms expire, as the law now stands, before he goes out of office himself. Everything that low cunning and ingenuity could devise was resorted to by the combinationists to prevent this bill ever coming before the Senate; but, though successful for a while, they are gnashing their teeth now over the prospect of its speedy passage in the Senate by the aid of the two anti-Tammany Senators and the republicans Senators, who are not in the market for the use of any political ring. To-morrow the same bill will be introduced in the lower house by Mr. Peabody, of the Committee on Cities, and I am informed that there is already an assured majority of that committee in its favor who will, early next week, report it favorably to the House. Tammany's republican agents here are not so jubilant to-day, in consequence, as they were the night when Booth succeeded in holding back the bill which Wickham and Kelly are so determined to have slaughtered. The prominent republicans from the interior—members of the Assembly—are very indignant over the boasts made by the Custom House lobbyists that they have the whip hand of a majority of the republicans and that whatever the "leaders" in New York desire, who are so desirous to serve themselves and to prolong Tammany rule in New York, can be accomplished at their word of command. It is believed that when the fight begins down stairs the combinationists will be routed, horse, foot and dragoons, and that some fine day not long distant, "Boss" Kelly will wake up to find that his dear republican friends in New York, when they made an alliance offensive and defensive with him and his followers, agreed to sell what they could not deliver.

WHAT'S TO BE DONE WITH THE NEW CAPITOL?

Unfortunately for the happy and uniform completion of the new Capitol building, every Legislature that has come here since the foundation was laid has insisted in meddling with the original plans and the method of construction. The result is, as Senator Woodin expressed it, that all concerning the building is in a complete muddle. One side contends that if the original designs are carried out the structure will cost anywhere from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. The other side holds that if the recommendations of the Advisory Board of architects are adopted, even though a great saving may be effected thereby, the building will be architecturally ruined, and present, in the words of Senator Harris, as absurd and incongruous an appearance as a man dressed in a sober suit of black with a lady's flowered bonnet on his head. From the course of the debate to-day it did not seem as if any Senator had a clear idea of what course was best to pursue. The fight among the architects only confuses the question, and as no member of the Senate can presume to set himself up as an authority in architecture none of them are in a position to decide who has the best of the argument. The Commissioners of the new Capitol should have been vested with authority to make a final decision in the matter. They reported in favor of the plan recommended by the Advisory Board; but the Senate Committee on Finance ignore their conclusions and advocate following out the original design. In the debate over the appropriation of $1,000,000 Senator Starbuck moved to strike out the entire item, and said the building thus far had been according to false methods in the past, and a radical change should be inaugurated in the future. He expressed the opinion that of the $6,000,000 already expended at least $2,000,000 had been uselessly squandered. Millions upon millions of brick had been put in at $11 and $12 per 1,000, the regular price for which was only $8. Sand in untold quantities had been paid for at the rate of $1 a cubic yard, that plenty of men would be glad to furnish at fifty cents. Vast supplies of cement had been paid for at the rate of $1 50 and $1 80 per barrel that the man who furnished it was subsequently willing to sell, when brought to the crucial test of competitive bids, at seventy-five cents per barrel. The great leak of all had occurred in the item of granite. The remedy he would suggest looked to an appropriation of $15,000 or $20,000. Plans should be prepared for the completion of the entire building, approaches and all, and builders be invited to file proposals for finishing the building. Till the opening of next year he would call a halt, and let the work cease for the present.

Mr. Harris argued in favor of carrying on the work under the original plan. The material used on the building had all been purchased at the current prices, and as for the building he considered there was nothing in the world like it for beauty and durability.

Mr. Gerard asked if it were right and proper to compel the new Capitol Commissioners, with no discretion whatever, to go on and complete a work in which they had no heart—and more than that, a work which they absolutely condemned. It was only just, he claimed, that the present Commissioners should be released from the duty or else the modified plans they recommend should be adopted.

Starbuck's motion was lost, and one of Gerard's to strike out the provision requiring the commission to complete the exterior walls of the building up to the roof, according to the plans upon which it is now being erected, was adopted. The provision appointing the Speaker of the Assembly one of the Commissioners of the new Capitol was also stricken out.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

In the discussion of the Supply bill this evening in the Senate, Mr. Gerard moved to strike out the appropriation of $8,000 for exhibiting the products of the Dairymen's Association of the State at Philadelphia, on behalf of New York city, which will have to pay half this sum of money for the accommodation of these granger gentlemen, who want a building put up for them at the expense of the State, where they may snow and sell their cheese and butter.

Mr. Gerard protested and made a bright and happy speech that amused even all the countrymen, except Senator Vedder, of Cattaraugus, who essayed a reply to Gerard by saying that a pettifogger from New York could not understand the great good to the country to be derived from an exhibition at Philadelphia of cheese presses and butter tubs. The appropriation was retained in spite of the fact that it is clearly unconstitutional.

AN UNCONSTITUTIONAL APPROPRIATION.

A sharp discussion ensued on another item to pay $3,000 to a keeper of Auburn Prison, who was maimed for life in quelling a riot among the convicts. Senators Rogers and Woodin pleaded for the payment of the money on no other grounds than that it was a case of humanity. Schoonmaker and Prince showed the utter unconstitutionality of such appropriations, which would open the door to endless applications for eleemosynary aid from the State. The item was stricken out. In regard to the statements made by Superintendent Colville concerning the disposition of certain State property at Quarantine Dr. Vanderpoel desires to say that at the first opportunity he will explain the whole thing satisfactorily.

FELIX MURPHY'S CAPRICE.

The Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Assembly have held an investigation into the charge of improper conduct against Felix Murphy, and will to-morrow report a single resolution of reprimand, the committee being satisfied that Felix was under spiritual influence when, through mere caprice, he took the Insurance reports out of other members' boxes.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

Senator Jacobs introduced a concurrent resolution relative to the number of justices of the Supreme Court and the districts in which they shall be elected as follows:—

SEC. 6.—There shall be the existing Supreme Court with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the Court as now is or may be prescribed by law; and it shall be composed of the justices now in office, with two additional justices to be elected as hereinafter provided, who shall be continued during their respective terms and of their successors. The existing judicial districts of the State are continued until changed pursuant to this section. Five of the justices shall reside in the district in which is the city of New York, and six in the Second Judicial district, and four in each of the other districts.

Mr. Patten called up his resolution reciting the distress among the laboring classes of New York, and asking the Legislature for some means of relief. It was laid on the table.

Senator Baaden introduced a bill providing for a new market in the Fifth Senatorial district.

THE COMMISSIONER OF JURORS—ARGUMENT BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEALS YESTERDAY.

ALBANY, April 5, 1876.

The case of the people ex rel. Douglas Taylor vs. Thomas Dunlap, respondent, was argued to-day before the Court of Appeals. A. Oakey Hall appeared for the appellant and William M. Evarts for the respondent. Mr. Hall, for Mr. Taylor, contended that no power or duty of the office of Commissioner of Jurors—an office appointed by judges and supervisors, was never even remotely connected, since the charter of 1830, with the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty, and, therefore, the office of Commissioner of Jurors was beyond the title or subject matter of a charter, and its insertion therein was a fraud upon the Legislature and the public. This view of the case Mr. Hall illustrated by giving a running history of charters and acts relating to jurors.

Mr Evarts, for Mr. Dunlap, argued to prove that the title of the act under which his client claims to hold his office was "to reorganize the local government of the city and county of New York," and that the jury system was part of that local government and therefore constitutionally allied with corporate authority.

POLICE RIGHTS AND WRONGS.

THE NEW BILL AND ITS PROBABLE RESULTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Why do you not come out with an editorial in your paper against the proceedings of the Police Commissioners? I see in your paper the order that was issued yesterday to the force forbidding them to hold any meeting or subscribe any money to pay the expenses of a lawyer to go to Albany and look after their interests. Why, sir, two of the Commissioners have been up at Albany constantly for the past two week. After one of them returned from there on Saturday what was done? Why they altered rule No. 94 so that a man from any part of the State can come here and be appointed a policeman. What was that done for? Only to buy up the country members' votes in the way of appointments. What right had they to go to Albany to buy up votes? Ex-Commissioner Disbecker was censured for that very thing. Why should not these Commissioners be also censured for it? All this effort to obtain power is not for this time; it is for the next election, when, unless every member of the force gives up all principle and manhood so as to suit their views, he will be dismissed from the department and their tools will be appointed in his place. Now, sir, I will ask you what protection will the merchant or the unfortunate drunkard have if a policeman can be dismissed at will? Why none. What has a policeman to encourage him to do right? Nothing but his own conscience. Alas, poor conscience! If a policeman goes out on a tour of night duty he does not know but that when he returns to the station house he will find a notice to the effect that his services are no longer required. We must not expect to find all policemen troubled with a conscience. Take, for instance, twenty-five men out of 1,500 that are bad; look at what they could do. As they did in Mayor Wood's time, when they could be dismissed at will—namely, go in with thieves and "put up" burglaries on their posts; or should they happen to pick up a drunken man who would have his wages in his pocket, upon which his family depended for sustenance during the coming week, his money could be taken from him before he would get to the station house. I do not say it would be done, but it is the temptation the policeman would be subjected to that should be taken into consideration. A policeman could say, "I may be dismissed at any moment. I will at least make the expense of my uniform before I do leave." Burglars can give a policeman $500 to shut his eyes and a burglary could be committed, and all they could prove would be that the policeman neglected his duty and dismiss him from the department, which might be done without cause.

Now give us a good editorial in your paper. Give us a common sense view of the case. Many of us are waiting to get your views on the subject, and by so doing you will confer a great favor upon

APRIL 4, 1876. A POLICEMAN.

THE PROPOSED REDUCTION OF PAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

To those who are pushing the swarm of Police bills at Albany, all tending to the reduction of patrolmen's salaries, a very pertinent question might be put:—"Do you expect men to work like dogs for less than will buy them a crust and a paper collar?" And yet that is what they are about to force us to do. Our salaries are nominally $1,200, but out of this uniforms, caps, clubs, belts, &c., are to be purchased, leaving the real sum to be handled for domestic purposes less than $1,000. Now, if the proposed reduction and grading is accomplished, the actual sum to be handled will be, by one bill, $850, $800 and $650; by another, $800, $750 and $550. These wages are far too small for anything but a ragpicker to live on at best. Then, suppose an officer has had a hard fight with a criminal and his uniform is spoiled; there will then be over $100 more deducted from his pay. Again, suppose he has been sick—and, considering his hard life, it is not an unlikely matter—there is another reduction. So that, altogether, if there is good reason why such reduction should be made there should be charities established where patrolmen's families can apply at such times as they may be suffering—as they must—for the necessaries of life. ANTEROS.

"DOGGED, BESPIED AND TEMPTED."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I hear from some of our men that you are willing to aid us in our struggle against injustice. If I were sure of this I should not hesitate to send my address, but I cannot tell by what channel, unknown to you, it might reach Headquarters, when I should be dismissed at once. For what? God knows only for acting a man's part. Yet, such is the case; we are watched, dogged, bespied and tempted into charges at every step, so that we dare neither speak above our breaths nor have an opinion of our own—else, off go our heads. Morally we are dogs, whipped, beaten, curbed out of all semblance of men and now they want to starve us. Any one conversant with the inner workings of this department will tell you the same. This short note, herewith, may at least set people thinking if it does not save us, and I hope you will find it in your power to publish it. By so doing you will do us more favor than we shall get from outsiders in a hurry.

A TAXPAYER ON THE SITUATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

There is considerable talk just now in relation to the Police bill, which any thinking man can see is a conspiracy to put about $150,000 in the pockets of the Mayor and Police Commissioners. The bill calls for 3,000 men. Each of those men would have to pay $150 or $200 if they wish to hold their position and go on the $1,200 grade. The captains, sergeants and detectives would be used in like manner. Mark my words, if that bill passes the police force will become demoralized, and the city be without protection and a disgrace to our country. If there is a bad man in the force and they want to dismiss him they can do so by putting a roundsman in citizen's dress to watch him. But this bill is for the purpose of dismissing good men that cannot be caught violating the rules, but because he may not suit the Commissioners. Now, sir, I am not a policeman, but a taxpayer, and, seeing what a dangerous conspiracy there is on foot to put money into the pockets of those five officials, I could not help calling attention to the matter. The members of the police force have proved themselves to be reliable. The Legislature should not discourage them. Please publish the name of every member of the Legislature who will vote for the passage of the bill. JUSTICE.

THE LACTOMETER.

The Medico-Legal Society met last night at No. 12 West Thirty-first street, about eighty members being present. The committee appointed to inquire into the condition of the public schools made a lengthy report, which the chairman (Mr. Yeamans) wished to have considered as merely one of progress. The report is referred to in the HERALD's account of the meeting of the Board of Education, published elsewhere.

Dr. Doremus, one of the committee appointed to report on the efficiency of the lactometer as a scientific instrument, took the floor and read the report of the committee. He stated, in opening, that all that had been said by him before the society on a former occasion regarding the unreliability of this instrument was confirmed.

"In the opinion that the lactometer is not reliable as a test," said the Doctor, "we are supported by the best scientific authorities. Among many others, the following may be named:—Wurtz, 'Dictionnaire de Chemie,' p. 192; Gorup-Besanez, 'Lehrbuch der Physiologischen Chemie,' 1867, pp. 404, 420; Hoppe-Seyler, 'Handbuch der Physiologisch und Pathologisch Chemischen Analyse', 1870, p. 263; Watt's Dictionary of Chemistry, Vol. 3, p. 1,022; J. A. Wanklyn, 'Milk Analysis,' 1874, p. 8; Chas. F. Chandler, Ph. D., 'American Chemist,' July, 1871, p. 26."

The lactometer is a very unreliable guide, as skimming causes the milk to appear better while watering exerts the opposite effect. By resorting to both forms of fraud at the same time the normal gravity of the milk may be preserved. By analysis, however, we can decide the gravity of the milk with more certainty.

This last quotation, from the pen of Dr. Chandler, who is now so hot an advocate of the efficacy of the lactometer as a scientific instrument, elicited derisive and prolonged laughter. Broad hints were made, in fact it was asserted during the debate on the report, that corruption influenced the Board of Health in the use of the lactometer.

RAPID TRANSIT.

Work in Progress on the Battery.

The Pearl Street Route to Third Avenue and the Third Avenue Line Described.

THE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS.

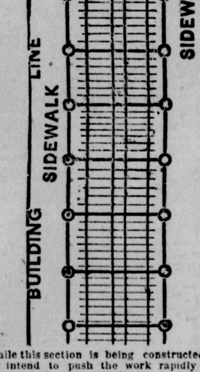
Notwithstanding the vexatious litigations and the opposition of legislative bodies, whose members seem to be more anxious to protect the interests of the horse car companies than those of the masses, the prospects for the legislation of rapid transit are decidedly cheering. The New York Elevated Railroad, although met with opposition at every step, is showing most conclusively that fast travel is possible here as in London. Between 6,000 and 7,000 passengers are carried daily on the line, and it is believed if trains were run more frequently the travel would greatly increase. For some time the company has been engaged in building turnouts at various points on the line with the ultimate view of connecting them and thus form a double track from the Battery to the Central Park. They have already constructed about a mile and a half of these turnouts, which would form one-third of the completed double track. One of the longest turnouts is now being built from Eleventh street to Twenty-fourth street, a distance of one mile. The injunction now before the courts to prevent the construction of a turnout in front of the Pacific Hotel has been a temporary check, but it is believed that when the court considers the interests of the public as compared with those of individual property owners the injunction will be dissolved. The company has these turnouts under contract to be finished by May 1. Unless litigation delays the work they will be completed on the date named, and the company will at once run trains on ten minutes headway instead of twenty minutes. They expect to complete the entire extra track during the summer, and they will be able to run trains on from three to five minutes headway or less if travel demands it.

THE BATTERY EXTENSION.

The contract for the construction of what is known as the Battery extension, so as to connect with the South ferry, has been given to the Passaic Iron Company, which is actively at work putting the iron together. A large force of workmen began on Monday to lay across the Battery Park the foundation, which consists of flagstone six inches thick, upon which is solid brick masonry about six feet high, tapering from seven feet square at the base to four feet at the top. The whole will be surmounted by a cast iron plate one and a half tons in weight, into which the base of the pillars will be set and bolted. The foundation extends seven feet below the surface and is amply sufficient to bear any weight required. There will be a double track over the edge of the park, supported by two lines of columns. The architect of the Park Department has prepared a very pretty design for ornamental columns, which will make the structure present a pleasing effect. The columns, and the entire structure, in fact, are to be entirely hidden by vines and trees, and at points where the road crosses the walks of the park the road bed is to be made water tight. This section, it is expected, will be completed in five or six weeks.

THE EAST SIDE EXTENSION IN PEARL STREET.

The company have under contract with the same firm the construction of the section running through Pearl street and New Bowery, from Broadway to Chatham square, which will be completed by August 1, unless the work is delayed by litigation in the courts. The style of structure is to be very much like the present road on the west side, so far as strength, &c., are concerned. It is, however, to be a double track, with columns on either curb, and the road spanning the street, as shown in this diagram:—



While this section is being constructed the company intend to push the work rapidly on the other sections of the east side line, so as to have a double track road in the centre of Third avenue and the Bowery, extending to Second street, completed before autumn.

THE THIRD AVENUE STRUCTURE

will be a double track, immediately over the present horse car tracks. There will be trusses extending up on each side of the track to strengthen the structure and prevent accident in the event of derailment. It will occupy twenty-one feet of the street centre, and there will be eighteen feet three inches in the clear between the columns and the curbs, which will be ample for travel on the avenue. The structure will be ornamented with gas lamps and other appurtenances, to make it present a sightly appearance.

It is calculated to be much stronger than the present Greenwich street structure, and Chief Engineer Combright reports it will carry almost double the present rolling weight. The company are now constructing new six and a half ton engines and twelve cars to be ready for the increase of travel expected when the sections under contract are completed.

THE GILBERT ROAD.

President Foster and Chief Engineer Gilbert are actively at work on their plans for the double track road through Chambers street, West Broadway, South Fifth avenue, West Third street and Sixth avenue to Central Park, which is under contract to be finished by the 1st of August. They report no opposition and no litigation. The property owners seem to be satisfied, although a meeting, composed principally of horse railway employés, was held at Germania Hall, in the Sixth avenue, last Sunday. It will be a double track road, in the centre of the street, built of the best iron, with steel rails, capable of sustaining a moving load of 2,000 pounds per lineal foot, and carrying fifteen ton engines.

THE CAPITAL.

Both companies have ample capital, and it is safe to say that before this season next year there will be three double track lines in full operation, unless the Courts grant injunctions asked for in the interests of the street car companies.

THE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS.

In the Special Term of the Court of Common Pleas, before Chief Justice Daly, there was a large crowd yesterday to listen to the argument on the recent order granted to show cause why the injunction prohibiting further work on the Elevated Railroad extension, procured at the instance of Mr. Patten, proprietor of the Pacific Hotel, as nominal plaintiff, should not be continued. Messrs. Mathews and Dillon appeared on behalf of the railroad company, and Roger A. Pryor and Mr. Strong for Mr. Patten.

Mr. Mathews raised the preliminary point that, under the act of 1867, an injunction can only be granted against this road by a Judge of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Daly intimated that he considered the section referred to unconstitutional.

Mr. Mathews next argued that the complaint says the road was "duly incorporated" under the acts of 1867, 1868 and 1873, without any allegations of these acts being unconstitutional. Now these acts empowered them to run over Greenwich street and make extensions. Moreover, Judge Brady has given a decision under the act of 1867 that section 11 of the act is constitutional, and that applications for an injunction must be made to the Supreme Court.

The Chief Justice remarked that this was just the point he wished to have argued in the first place—viz., the jurisdiction of the Court, on which he had not given any decision.

Mr. Mathews said he only wanted to raise a preliminary objection to bring the case before the General Term.

The Chief Justice said he couldn't receive a preliminary objection without discussion.

Mr. Pryor reminded the Court that even if it did hold the acts of 1867 and 1868, under which the company claimed to hold their purchases, to be unconstitutional, they were rejected by the act of 1873, chapter 239, section 1, which gives the Common Pleas concurrent and coextensive jurisdiction on all civil cases with the Supreme Court.

Mr. Strong said the Pacific Hotel, west side of Greenwich street, was held in fee by the relator, and the fee of the land was held by the orginal grantee. Last week the defendant proceeded to build a turnout and switch, and made excavations into the relator's vaults under the sidewalk, and the injunction was got to restrain them from further encroachments. He contended further that the acts of 1867-8 were unconstitutional; that the time for constructing the road expired in 1873, and at all events made no provisions for the turnout; that the road was a nuisance, with the smoke, oil, &c., and that it had given no notice of the taking of the relator's land for the turnout, and had made no provisions to assess damages under the General Railroad act of 1850.

Mr. Mathews, in reply, said this action struck at the whole principle of rapid transit. After millions of money were spent and a road run from the Battery to Central Park, and after nine years, Mr. Patten found out that they were a nuisance. If he could stop rapid transit they might as well pull down their railroads. The fact was, it had been especially held under the acts of 1867-8, the land in that vicinity belonged to the city. Every allegation of wrong in any way is met by the defendant's opposing papers, and in such case an injunction cannot be upheld. He here quoted a decision of Justice Seldon, 16 New York, as to the title streets opened from 1807 to 1813, being entirely vested in the Corporation; also Wetmore vs. Story, 22 Barbour. He submitted affidavits showing that the road was not a nuisance, that no one but Mr. Patten was making an objection to the numerous turn outs constructing at various points, and which were necessary in order that trains could run every ten instead of every twenty minutes, and thus making rapid transit a success.

Mr. Pryor, who next addressed the Court, spoke on the question of the constitutionality of the act. The people, he said, had no business to invade the rights of citizens under the pretence of public convenience. The question was whether the plaintiff exhibited a legal right, or a legal wrong properly remedied by the injunctive relief. The plaintiff impeached the validity of the act under which the defendant claimed to be incorporated, and held that it was only incorporated under the General Railroad act of 1850. No obstruction of rapid transit was sought by plaintiff. He only asked to enjoin an additional new trespass, the construction of the turnout opposite his premises. Defendants operated their road for years without any turnout, which is an additional track, by which the train can swing from its main track across to the other side of the street until another train passes, and standing within eleven feet of the plaintiff's window, whistling, screaming and dropping its oil and obstructing the light of his hotel, practically destroying his property and making it valueless for hotel purposes. He argued that if this be illegal and unauthorized it clearly inflicts a special injury for which an injunction is a proper remedy. The records proved the plaintiff to be the owner in fee of the lot from the centre of the street to the river. An attempt was made to take his property for public use without compensation. But even if the plaintiff had no title to the ground up to the middle of the street, unless the defendants had authority of law, they were creating a public nuisance, and if any sustained special damage he was entitled to an injunction. He then took up the constitutionality of the act under which the defendants are proceeding. He said that the act of 1857, which stripped the Court of Common Pleas of its ancient, honorable and beneficient jurisdiction, was unconstitutional, because being a private bill with only one subject in its title, whereas it contained three separate subjects. The act of 1868 likewise he claimed to be unconstitutional, because it expressed two subjects in the title. Supposing, however, both to be constitutional, the time for the completion of the work expired October, 1873. To overcome these difficulties an act was passed in 1875, which, however, was unavailing.

After showing the alleged unconstitutionality of this act, he urged in conclusion that the Court should exert its injunction arm to intercept that unspeakable outrage contemplated by the defendants.

After a brief rejoinder by Mr. Mathews, Judge Daly took the various briefs of counsel and the other papers for examination preliminary to giving his decision.

GREENWICH STREET AGAINST RAPID TRANSIT.

The large dining hall of the Pacific Hotel, No. 172 Greenwich street, was crowded last evening with the enemies of the Elevated Railroad. The German element of the Fifth and Eighth wards was largely represented, and it might almost have been thought, to witness the Teutonic indignation against modern invasion of old notions, that the first settlers of Manhattan Island had come again on the scene to sturdily assert their preference for old customs. Mr. Edward Heath took the chair at half-past eight o'clock, and Mr. C. Wolverton acted as secretary. The first reference by Mr. Andrew Little was to the injunction proceedings detailed above and the argument made by counsel in favor of the property owners. The various committees made reports in writing to the meeting, which were read as follows:—"On Ninth avenue, from about the numbers 435 to 763 the property holders were called upon, and thirty-seven names of real estate owners, who agreed to take at once active means, and to submit to assessments for the purpose of testing their rights in the courts, from the lowest to the highest, were signed. In their report it was stated that they were sufferers by the Elevated Railway from various causes, the principal being the darkening of their stores and dwellings; the shaking of their buildings by the passage of the trains; the dropping of oil and refuse on the sidewalks, and general injury to convenience and business."

Mr. Andrew Little, chairman of the committee of the Third ward, stated that he had called on fifteen property owners, who had unanimously agreed to be assessed for the purpose of abating the nuisance now existing, as their real estate had depreciated about forty per cent since the running of the trains on the Elevated road.

Mr. Patrick F. Lyons, of the Fifth ward, reported that he held in his hand thirty-two names of business men and property owners who agreed to stand by the opposition to further encroachments. A German real estate owner declared that he was not opposed to rapid transit, but was opposed to his property being ruined without compensation. The committees were continued the same as announced in the Herald—Messrs. Cheny, Duffy, Little, Graham, Lyons, Pollock, Patten, Kelly and Dolman—for the purpose of further action after the injunction decision shall be announced.

BARRETT'S CRIMES.

THE FUGITIVE LAWYER FOUND TO HAVE BEEN A FORGER.

Yesterday rumors were circulated that implicated the fugitive, William C. Barrett, in one of the most glaring forgeries ever perpetrated in this city. Kunhardt & Co., agents of the Hamburg line of steamers, were said to have been victimized to the amount of $20,000 through a collision case in which they were the defendants.

A Herald reporter visited the office of Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. and had an interview with one of the principals, in which he elicited the following remarkable story:—

In the autumn of 1874 Mr. William C. Barrett was acting as legal adviser for the firm of Kunhardt & Co., and defending them in a suit for damages brought by the owners of the Harriet Livsley, originating in a collision with the steamer Hammonia, of the Hamburg line. The case had been pending for some time in the courts, and Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. finally instructed Mr. Barrett to bring the matter to an issue. Propositions for a settlement were made to the lawyers of the libellants, and on the 8th of November, 1874, Mr. Barrett called on Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. and said he had made arrangements to settle the claim for $19,000, and that he would call for a check for that amount on the following day. On the 9th of November he called and presented a legal document to which was attached a small slip of paper, bearing the signature of G. F. Betts, Clerk of the United States Court, certifying that the document was a correct copy. The paper itself was a release from all claims on the part of the libellants. Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. were satisfied and gave a check for $19,000 on the Corn Exchange Bank, payable to the libellants, Messrs. William Ives and John Waters. Then, thinking the matter ended, they put the document in their safe, and the whole affair passed away from memory.

AN UNPLEASANT SURPRISE.

A few days after the departure of Mr. Barrett for Europe Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. were surprised by receiving a legal communication, stating that the collision case between the Hammonia and the Harriet Livsley would be brought to trial the following week. They immediately hunted up the legal documents they had received from Mr. Barrett, as well as the check, which had been returned from the Corn Exchange Bank, and paid a visit to Messrs. Redfield & Hill, Mr. Barrett's late partners. On stating the case Messrs. Redfield and Hill had their books examined and informed Mr. Kunhardt that if Mr. Barrett had received any such sum he must have used it for his own private use, as it was not charged to the credit of the firm. Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. then went to the lawyers for the libellants and were soon satisfied that Mr. Barrett had appropriated the money and forged the signatures on the back of the check, as the libellants, Messrs. Ives & Waters, were absent from New York at the time it was paid.

The case will probably give rise to some interesting litigation, as Messrs. Kunhardt & Co. will sue the Corn Exchange Bank to recover the amount. The latter paid the check as it came through the Nassau Bank, where it had been deposited by Mr. Barrett, and they probably were satisfied with Mr. Barrett's indorsement.

ROBBING A PENSIONER.

James G. Rogers, alias Dalrymple, was arrested yesterday on a warrant procured by Pension Agent James McLeer, of Brooklyn, and taken before United States Commissioner Winslow on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that the accused, who was employed as clerk in the Pension Office, was recently sent to the Post Office with several letters containing checks for pensioners. He is accused of opening a letter containing $90, addressed to a woman in Binghamton, and taking out the money. A couple of days later he forged the pensioner's indorsement and drew the amount of the check at the Nassau National Bank. The woman for whom the money was intended is unable to write and makes her mark instead. All checks are stamped "Pension Office," and Rogers stamped the check which he presented at the bank. He then left Brooklyn, and, going to Washington, enlisted in the United States Marine Corps under the name of Dalrymple. He was transferred to the United States ship Colorado, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. On the latter vessel Mr. McLeer found him and caused his arrest. The prisoner is held to await examination.

CHEAP CABS.

Consternation Among the Livery Stable Keepers.

WHAT THEY HAVE TO SAY.

"No Matter What the Laws Are the Prices Will Be the Same."

A NEW DEPARTURE FORESHADOWED.

The District Telegraph Company in the Field.

The feeling against the extortionate dealings of the hack proprietors in this city grows apace, and the necessity for reform in the methods of enforcing the rates of charge prescribed by the ordinance published on Tuesday in the Herald is now more generally understood. The ordinance is a fair one, when compared with ordinances of former years, but it is of little value, because no greater efforts are made to force compliance with it. Undoubtedly the licensed hackmen are furnished with copies of "the article" which is to govern them in the future; but these they carry in their pockets, and unless the public are familiar with the ordinance no check can be placed on rapacious drivers.

In the first place, the wayfarer has no means, unless previously aware of the fact, of learning the distance he has been conveyed, so that he may be compelled to pay the fare allowed for three miles when he has only been driven one, and, in the second place, custom has always permitted the driver to get his own rates. For these reasons the livery stable keepers and owners of cabs, when spoken to on the subject of "hack extortion," are only too ready to lay the greatest share of the blame upon their employés. They say, deprecatingly, that the public should not condemn them for what they have not been able to control. Their vehicles are sent out to the stand at the disposal of the drivers, and the latter invariably make their own bargains with customers, which bargains are not as advantageous as they might be to the customers. The truth is, however, that livery stable keepers have been in the habit of making rates to suit themselves, so that scarcely any two in the city are governed by the same rates. Ordinances are worthless so far as they are concerned at present, and complaints are made by the hundred without producing any visible reform or relief.

COMMON EXTORTIONS.

The abuses so annoying to the public at large are of everyday occurrence and so prevalent that little attention is paid to them. Even the sufferers do little more than remonstrate with the hackman. No one ever thinks of invoking the aid of the police. The universal custom is to growl and pay. All sorts of instances of extortion are related by people who have been forced to give ridiculously high prices for cabs. Their mere recital would hardly be deemed true. For example, a gentleman residing in the Ninth ward hired a hack to take him from the French steamship dock to Brooklyn. He paid the ferriage to that city, and when he reached his destination he dismissed the hack. Offering to settle, he was surprised to learn that his bill was $7. He had occupied the hack not longer than an hour. He foamed, fretted and contested this charge, but the driver was inexorable, and to save an unpleasant scene the gentleman paid. The queerest part of the transaction follows:—This passenger hired another cab at Miller's stable, in Brooklyn, on the same day, to bring him back to the foot of Canal street in New York. The charge for this second journey was only $3. Again, the custom used to be, and is undoubtedly still in well ordered livery stables, to keep a printed schedule of rates hung conspicuously in the office, so that one could know what he was bound to pay either for time or distance. The usual charge by time was $1 50 an hour below Forty-second street, if the horses were not kept continually on the move. Now, the livery stable men ask what they please as a rule, and are nearly always unwilling to let hacks on time at all. They want a distance fixed and set their own rate for it.

THE LAW NOT ENFORCED.

Section 7 of article 3 of the new ordinance referring to rates and prices of fare says that "To and through Central Park from any point in and between Fourteenth and Forty-second streets and returning, with privilege of keeping carriage three hours, the fare shall be $5." There is not a hackman in this city that abides by this law, unless he deals with a customer who can control him. As a rule the charge for this drive is $8, and even at that fare the average hackman does not care to go. Section 9, which reads that the fare shall be $6 for a hack to and through Central Park, from any point below Fourteenth street and north of 175th street to Kingsbridge and returning, with privilege of keeping the carriage three hours, is almost totally disregarded. Of course, the hackmen acknowledge that it is the law; but they do not consider themselves bound to take a man such a distance simply because he offers the legal fare. As the bookkeeper at Reilly's stable said to a Herald reporter on Tuesday, "The ordinance is well enough in its way, but people that want hacks will pay the price that is asked for them. The ordinance won't make any difference in our business," said the clerk. "Things will go on about the same."

WHAT RATES WOULD SUIT.

There is a great diversity of opinion as to the rates that might be considered by both passenger and proprietor fair. The latter consider the rates prescribed by the new ordinance very reasonable; the former, as a rule, pronounce them too high. The proprietors complain, like everybody else, of the "hard times" and the high wages they have to pay their help. "It is all very well to speak of the London and Paris rates," said a livery man yesterday; "but you don't know how much more it costs to run a coach here than in either of the other cities."

"Well, how much do you pay your drivers?" said the reporter.

"Oh, all the way from $12 a week up. Some men, especially old hands, we give as high as $18 a week."

"What do you give your stable hands?"

"Well, various prices. Just like the drivers."

From these sort of statements it will be seen that there are no actually fixed rates for the wages of the help. Every stable keeper conducts his establishment as cheaply as possible. The hands do not consider themselves well paid. For example, in a livery stable on the west side of the town, below Tenth street, the drivers say that they do not get more than $12 on an average. Where, then, the wages and other expenses of running the business are irregular, it is hard to say, with any accuracy, just how cheaply a cab and its outfit can be placed in profitable service. No two men agree on this point. The whole craft, however, is in unison thus far—they will get what they can from the public. They know that, under existing circumstances, they cannot be checked. The ordinance may have been passed and printed, but it cannot be enforced successfully they think.

A NEW SYSTEM TO BE INTRODUCED.

Among the expedients suggested for getting rid of the cab grievance, or in some degree modifying it, is the establishment of a cab system by the American District Telegraph Company, or their forming a contract to act in conjunction with some firm already engaged in running such vehicles. It was thought that a combination of signals might be arranged by which a cab could be telegraphed for and despatched to any place having communication with the company's offices. This would do away with delays, and, by having a stated schedule of rates established, overcharges and the impositions so much in practice would be guarded against. As there are in many private residences and in nearly all the hotels and other public places telegraphic communication with the District company's offices, this scheme could soon be systematized and reduced to practical working order. To facilitate it offices might be established within easy distance of cab stands, or cabs belonging to the company might constantly be kept in waiting.

Various business men about town to whom the plan was broached regarded it with favor, and stated their conviction that some such system is sorely needed and must sooner or later be introduced. They said that the difficulty of securing transit by means of such vehicles occurred to every one having any occasion for their frequent use, and the well known aptitude of their drivers for imposing upon passengers had created a general disinclination to employ them except in cases of urgent necessity. They thought that the system proposed would be one likely to subserve the interests of every one, as it would afford ready and commodious means to passage through the city at fair rates and consequently would increase the demand for cab service.

To ascertain how practicable such a system would be a Herald reporter called upon Mr. E. W. Andrews, President of the American District Telegraph Company, and, after submitting the proposition, requested his opinion of it.

"Why," said Mr. Andrews, "I am just engaged in perfecting such an arrangement as you suggest. Owing to certain peculiarities of our signal system it would be difficult to adopt precisely the plan you have proposed, but I have in course of settlement a contract with a large cab company which, I think, will enable me to offer all the advantages sought."

Mr. Andrews then detailed the features of his system. There is, it appears, telegraphic communication between the company's offices and some 4,000 houses about the city. In all of these cards will be left, on which are printed a list of the different kinds of vehicles employed in cab service, with the charges for different periods appended, and a space left for designating any particular stable where, in some cases, they are to be procured. When a vehicle is wanted a boy is telegraphed for and sent at once from the office. He receives the card on which the required particulars are noted, delivers it to the cabman, who immediately brings his conveyance to the designated place, and the passenger, after being carried to his destination, makes a note of the time, with his signature attached. The card is then delivered at the company's office by the cabman, who there receives compensation for his services, leaving the passenger to settle with the District Telegraph Company.

"I have already taken steps to introduce this system," said Mr. Andrews, "and within the next two weeks I am led to believe that I shall be able to declare it in practical working shape."

"But do you not think," said the reporter, "that immediate communication with the cab stand would expedite matters and guard against delays in the delivery of the message?"

"Oh, I think the difference in time is very immaterial. The messenger boys can reach any spot from which a telegram is sent in two minutes at the most, and by receiving full particulars about the vehicle wanted, annoying mistakes may be effectually guarded against. Besides, the establishment of other signals would be necessitated by the arrangement you suggest, and this would tend to distort and complicate the system now in use. I have seen a mention made of the remissness of the messengers in to-day's Herald which, though evidently intended in a kindly spirit, is somewhat too sweeping, and is apt to mislead public opinion. From our books it appears that there are four thousand calls received at our offices daily, yet in six months there are only twenty instances reported of delays, running from twenty to thirty minutes. From the Herald article, however, one would judge that these delays were of far more frequent occurrence. They have been most generally occasioned by accidents arising from no fault of the company's employés, but from causes altogether beyond their reach. For instance, it sometimes happens that the Atlantic or Western Union wires drop down upon ours, and again, in storms, our communication is once in a while broken off, and can only be restored when the wires are repaired. I have also known messages on a certain occasion to be intercepted by malicious persons cutting the wires, but such accidents are of extremely rare occurrence, and I anticipate no trouble from them, so far as the cab system is concerned. By exacting a daily report of the number of messages received at each office every hour we are enabled to so distribute our employés that an adequate force is always on hand." Mr. Andrews then went on to say that he intended during the centennial season to supply not only cabs but guides, interpreters and commissionaires, for whose services strangers visiting the country would have occasion.

A GREAT WANT.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Your article yesterday on cheap cab fares strikes the nail on the head—it refers to a want greatly felt in this community. What is the use of being progressive, enterprising and all that if we cannot bring it practically to bear on an everyday comfort like this. It appears to me that the whole difficulty lies in our confused and uncertain ideas of distance, mystified by the complicated details of the city ordinance. The mystery of the distance of any given residence to, say, the Cortlandt street ferry, is so deep that we are at the mercy of the driver, when his compensation by law depends on the distance travelled. My suggestion is to discard the question of distance altogether from the municipal ordinance and make time alone the basis of compensation. Say, for instance, every cab is required to have conspicuously on the inside the following, where all who run may read:—

Two persons, for less than half an hour............	50 cents
Two persons, for three-quarters of an hour.........	75 cents
Two persons, for one hour...............................	$1.

In the glance of an eye the confused stranger, as well as the better acquainted citizen, can see by his watch what he has to pay, no matter where he wants to go. As you say in your admirable article, thousands would freely and constantly use the cab for short trips of ten or fifteen minutes, if it only costs fifty cents, in preference to the horse car, which does not take him directly where he wants to go. This compensation, being about double that allowed in London, ought to be sufficient here. The driver would have no chances for extortion by exaggerating distances. The cab owner would be amply compensated by the greatly increased use of his vehicle. The community would be relieved from the necessity of bargaining beforehand on the possibility of dispute afterwards. A simple comprehension of the whole subject will prevail. The driver would go home every night with his pockets full of honestly earned money, and everybody would be happy.

A JEHU'S OPINION.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

You treat the subject of licensed hacks all one sided. I think if you had got some information from a responsible party in the business you would have given a different description, or none at all. You don't say anything about the cost of running a team and carriage in New York, but you quote the London prices, which receipts per day would not pay the driver's wages in New York, only one of the many items. The thing you propose has been tried by the New York Transfer Company, and did not pay. The hackney coaches are the poorest paid, at the present prices, of anything you can name. Look at the condition of the majority in the business; go among the carriage makers and see the trouble they have to get the notes paid given them for new work and repairing, simply because there is no money in running a coach—the cost being five dollars a day, saying nothing about interest, sick, lame or dead horses, or accidents they are liable to. There is no more reason why our prices should be regulated by law than the high prices you charge for advertising, which I have often paid your paper. I don't think you will publish this; but I think if you cannot do something to better the condition of the unfortunate in business you should not do or say anything to make it any worse. JEHU.

OUR DISTRICT TELEGRAPH AND CHEAP CABS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

In your issue of to-day I noticed an editorial headed "Our District Telegraph System." Having some knowledge of the facts in the case I desire to communicate them to the public through your columns. The reason of the decline in promptness and certainty of the system is not the result of culpability or negligence of the officers in charge, but in the messengers themselves, which is induced by the over strictness and subordination they are being brought to. As a proof of this you say, and rightly, that in the beginning it was noted for promptness, &c. Now, a little over a year ago there were got up certain new rules, which subjected the boys to fines of either extra hours or money deducted from their pay. This change was further strict by the fact that they were spied on by officers of the company, and every little incident taken advantage of to fine them.

Now, such a system, as any body knows who has had experience with boys, will work a contrary effect to what it is intended for, and nurse in the boys' feelings a spirit of opposition which can be very effectual when roused and combined in 500 or 600 boys.

In connection with this District Telegraph, I think it would be the best instrument for the establishment of a "cheap cab system," thereby combining fire, police, messenger and cab calls in one instrument.

Hoping you will see fit to publish this statement, I remain, respectfully yours, M. P. T.

New York, April 5, 1876.

MUST HAVE THEM.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I read with interest your editorial in this morning's paper on "Carriage and Cab Fares." It does indeed seem strange that we cannot have a "cheap cab system" in this city. As you truly say, the average citizen will not use a cab or carriage here unless absolutely compelled to do so, on account of the exorbitant charges of the hackmen. In more ways than for pleasure riding are cabs needed here. Last week, having a very sudden and alarming case of illness in my family, I was obliged to go at once to the house of our physician, some distance off. Not a cab or carriage was in sight (and even had I secured one, the driver, seeing my haste, would have charged me three or four times the proper fare), so I was forced to go by car, and as it conveyed me leisurely to my destination you can perhaps judge how tortured I was in mind. Thirty-five minutes were occupied in going and returning from the doctor's, and in London I could have gone the same distance, by a "two wheeler," in fifteen minutes, at a cost of about eighteen pence. Some few years ago, upon returning from Europe, I was struck (and "stuck" too) by the great contrast in cab fares here and there. Taking a four-wheeled cab from my hotel in Paris to the railway station, a distance of about three-quarters of a mile, I was charged three francs (about sixty cents), including my trunk on top and the pourboire. Arriving in New York, at the White Star dock, I took a carriage to Brooklyn and was only charged $10! Agitate the "cheap cab system" here, if you please, Mr. Editor. It would prove a blessing to our city. C.

CATHOLIC TEMPERANCE UNION.

The National Catholic Temperance Union has agreed to confer upon the boys of the Catholic Protectory at Westchester, N. Y., the degree of Cadets of Temperance, entitling them to all the privileges of full members of the Order and to be represented at the National Convention, without the payment of initiation fees or monthly dues. Next Sunday Alexander Patten, President of the New York State Division of the Catholic Temperance Union, will initiate the boys, under the auspices of Rev. Brother Tellow. The services promise to be of an interesting character and will be participated in by delegates from nearly every temperance organization of this vicinity. The band of the Catholic Protectory, composed exclusively of boys from fourteen to eighteen years of age, will take part in the ceremonies at the dedication of the massive temperance fountain at Philadelphia on the Fourth of July.

POLISH CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Polish Catholics of this city have recently completed a new church in Henry street. The church needs help very much, and contributions are asked for a ladies' fair, to be held during Easter week, to raise funds.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE.

The Coming Contest of the Universities' Crews.

Probabilities of Cambridge and Oxford Meeting in Fours at Philadelphia.

Putney, March 23, 1876.

It is amusing to observe the tone, almost bordering on indignation, in which our daily journals here regard the increasing interest now taken in boat racing, and particularly in the annual contest between our representative University crews, and how they look back with something akin to regret on the good old days when the now absorbing "Water Derby" was witnessed by only a few enthusiasts and professional watermen. It seems hard to them that a temporary mania (as they regard it) of the public mind should necessitate the mastering of an entirely new dictionary of slang by unhappy journalists, and I see an article in one of our daily papers of which the writer evidently prides himself on his ignorance of all terms and phrases connected with the ignoble pastime, and thinks that if the public were in their senses they would do the same. Horse racing is a national sport, carried on pretty nearly all the year round, and honored by two or three columns of each journal every day; it is nobly and widely patronized, and therefore must be held of vital importance independent of intrinsic merit, and the man of the pen, therefore, thinks it an Englishman's duty to be well up in all stable "lingo." Boating, however, is very different to his mind. Matching the bodily prowess and powers of endurance of eight gentlemen against eight more in a contest of four and a half miles, where no landsharks or bookmakers dare attempt an interference with a view to getting "the straight tip" or "doctoring" one of the competitors, sinks below all comparison with the performances of a member of the brute creation, though it be the noblest one. In these the bookmaker may safely stake his capital on the assurance that, in the worst event, he can "manage" the jockey or "doctor" the likely winner, and so the sport becomes more exciting from the additional uncertainty as to whether the best animal will be the winner. The fact is that high strung and unwholesome excitement of this kind has almost eliminated from our fashionable sports the only elements that elevated them, skill and endurance, and substituted for the healthy exercise of body and mind a wearing and degrading influence. However, disregarded and despised though it be among certain classes of our countrymen, yet sufficient interest has been created by the arrival of

to draw thousands to the banks of the Thames, even in the middle of a blinding snow storm, to witness the début of the light and dark blues. The Oxford men put in an appearance on Monday last at about twelve o'clock, taking up their quarters at the Fox and Hounds as on former occasions. They lost no time in launching their Clasper, and at three o'clock in the afternoon started from Mortlake, on a strong ebb tide, increased by land-water, to do the whole course of four and a half miles, which they completed in 21m. 30s., uncommonly fast for a first attempt.

THE DARK BLUES.

They row together like one man, and seem no more troubled by the rough water than if they were propelling a man-of-war's gig. Lord Londesborough has kindly chartered a steamer for their coach to lecture them from. They have brought with them two ships, both built by Clasper, and it is still uncertain which of them they will employ on the day of the race; but they are as nearly as possible alike, and there is little choice. Clasper's boats are famous for the "stiffness" of the build, and are unsurpassed for travelling buoyantly through a heavy sea, so that if the 8th of April happens to be rough the Oxonians will have a decided advantage in their craft. No change has been made in the crew since our last letter was sent, except that Williams has been removed from No. 7 to No. 3 and Marriott has taken his place. No. 7 thwart seems to produce awkwardness in its occupant, whoever he may be, probably owing to some slight defect in the construction. The slide seems to be hardly opposite the work, and this may possibly be the cause. Mercer, who officiates as No. 2, finds the long course and hard work come heavily on him, and looks each day after he returns from exercise as if he had had about enough of it. The other men look well trained and of powerful calibre, and there is a subdued air of conscious superiority about them that assures one that they have little doubt in their own minds as to the result of the coming race.

THE CANTABS

were somewhat later in their arrival on Monday, but they did not allow the grass to grow under their feet notwithstanding. After settling themselves down for an hour or so at a private house in "The Cedars," Putney, which they have rented for the occasion, they proceeded to the river and made trial of the Thames at about half-past three. The ship they are at present using has been built for them by Searle, of Cambridge and London, under the superintendence of Dunton, Mr. Searle's foreman, who has now gained a great reputation as constructor of stiff and fast boats. The craft measures 56 feet from stem to stern and is 9 inches deep at No. 5's thwart, easing off to 7 inches at the bow and 6 at the sternpost. She is 24 inches in beam at the widest place, and taken altogther is a creditable piece of workmanship. Messrs. Swaddle & Winship (a name familiar to you) have been engaged on a second ship for them, which is now finished and, we expect, will reach Putney about Friday next, the 24th. As to the component parts of the crew as much is scarcely to be expected from them in the matter of "form" as from the Oxonians, considering that only two members of a previous contest are to be found in it as against six in the Oxford boat. Consequently a great deal of loose and "independent" rowing is observable, and when they encounter rough water their appearance is such as to draw remarks of violent disapprobation from the casual spectators on the bank. Those, however, who look more closely into the merits of the team do not think so despairingly of them, and when we allow for the fact that hitherto they have been performing on comparatively smooth water (the Cam being screened by trees upon its banks), we shall not be so discouraged to find them inferior to their adversaries during the first week of their practice on rough water. The Oxonians, it must be remembered, have had high winds and waves to battle with all the time of their six weeks' training previous to this, so the Thames at present is in comparison smooth to them.

THE CAMBRIDGE STROKE.

The light blues, however, have a great number of redeeming points. Their stroke is long and sweeping, and if they could manage to put a little more dash into the beginning, would be unexceptionable. Some of the men, Nos. 4 and 6, for instance, scarcely drive the oar straight through the water, while No. 5 has never eradicated his besetting sin of deepening his oar as he goes back, thus taking up volumes of water on it and consequently rendering his recovery difficult. Such faults as these are of course aggravated and made more observable by the change to rough water, but three weeks' training on the Thames may be trusted to make great improvements in this respect. Taking and supposing that they progress pari passu from the present time there can be little doubt but that Oxford will win the day; however, the more room there is for improvement in such affairs the more rapid that improvement generally is, so we expect the light blues to take more expeditious strides in that direction, as in their case there certainly is no lack of room, and the odds on Oxford, which are now at 7 to 4, will, without doubt, come down considerably before the day of trial arrives. Taking matters as they stand now most people pin their faith to Oxford, but I dare say shortly after this reaches you the flash of the wire will have shown you the truth or falsity of their surmises.

PROBABILITIES OF TWO UNIVERSITY CREWS ROWING AT THE CENTENNIAL.

As regards the answers to the invitation for Philadelphia this summer, I have had two interviews with Mr. Close, the Cambridge University Boat Club President, on the subject. From my conversation with him I gather that there is a certainty of one four-oar at least going over, but whether that one will be an official and representative crew from the university or a private undertaking on the part of some of the undergraduates, or, it may be, one from each of these sources, will depend altogether on the result of this race. Men do not like to venture on an expedition so important and expensive until they have first found out what sort of metal they have available. From Oxford the answer is much to the same effect. They as yet have every reason to be satisfied with themselves, so I believe that one crew at least from each of the universities may be expected by you with confidence.

THE FOUR-OARED RACE

I spoke of in my last letter as anticipated here, to contend for the name of Champion crew and the honor of representing us as such at Philadelphia, has unhappily fallen through, at least for the present, owing to the difficulty found in adjusting preliminaries, such as the "venue," of trial of speed, &c. Such troubles seem to be always difficult to surmount in the case of professionals, but though it is given up for the present we must not therefore calculate that we have heard the last of it, as it is more than likely that it will be on the tapis again before long.

PRACTICE WORK.

I have just been down to the river to have another glimpse at the rival crews before despatching this, and it seems to me that even in the four short days that the Cambridge men have spent on the Thames their progress has been such as even to exceed the most sanguine hopes. They have become accustomed to the water, and now lift the boat along with a catch at the beginning of the stroke superior to that of their more practised opponents even. The Oxonians made a proper start from the aqueduct (which is the Putney end of the course), and rowed the whole course again yesterday, their time up to Hammersmith Bridge being nine minutes fifty seconds, and to Mortlake (the other terminus) twenty-three minutes. This, it will be seen, is retrograding on their previous performance of twenty-one minutes thirty seconds for the same distance. That course, however, had been done on a strong ebb tide, assisted by land-water, from Mortlake to Putney, and consequently is not so fair a criterion as this latter one. The Cantabs launched their boat about half an hour later and started from the same spot, making Hammersmith in a little under nine minutes (much better time than their rivals) and easing up at Chiswick Eyot, after a capital piece of rowing, and no man a whit the worse for it. There seems really to be very little to choose between the crews at present; indeed, only that there is always such a tendency to crack up the time of the non-favorite more than it deserves, I should say that Cambridge had the better chance. However, it is well known that men who have tried their strength before and know their powers never do their utmost in mere practice, and the irreproachable time and swing of the Oxonians count for a great deal in such a long and trying contest.

IRISH RIFLEMEN COMING.

THE COUNCIL OF THE IRISH RIFLE ASSOCIATION DECIDE TO SEND A TEAM TO THE CENTENNIAL—THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Dublin, March 23, 1876.

The instability of human resolutions was nigh receiving a fresh illustration yesterday. The Council of the Irish Rifle Association met to receive the formal report of the deputation appointed to solicit Major Leech's co-operation in organizing an Irish team for the Centennial rifle matches in America. The Major's reply, as you already know, was favorable. He was present yesterday, and read the following letter from Major General Shaler:—

New York, Feb. 28, 1876.

* * * * * * * * * Now, my dear Major, please thank your friends of the railway companies in my name, not only for their (your) remembrance of me, but for the splendid reception given our men. We cannot hope to ever return your unbounded liberality, but we will use you the best we can if you will come over and help us here this year. We have invited the whole world and Ireland besides, but have not challenged anybody. We want a grand gathering of riflemen from all parts to join with each other in a contest for an elegant Yankee prize, and only ask you to join with them. We shall have a team from Canada, one from Australia, one from Scotland, and probably one from Prince Edward Island. Shall we have one from Ireland, and will England send one? The Americans can hardly hope to win against such a field. We shall feel terribly disappointed if England is not represented. How can she stay away when everybody else is coming? I sincerely hope Sir Henry Halford will honor us with his presence. We have heard so many good things of him and his friends that we can hardly believe the reports that he will decline our invitation, much less that he would assume to influence others in their decision. We have not gotten up this match for the purpose of measuring our strength with any particular country, but for the purpose of inaugurating a series of matches in which the largest possible number may participate. This is the centennial anniversary of our independence as a nation. We are at peace with the whole world. We could not commit so belligerent an act as to challenge anybody. We extend our hands and open our arms to all riflemen that represent separate colonies. If we invited but one team from Great Britain and Ireland we could not invite one from Australia, Canada, Prince Edward's Island, &c., for they are all subjects of the same government. In your matches at Wimbledon you recognize Irishmen, Scotchmen, Englishmen and Canadians as such, and why should not we? We have followed in the tracks of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain in this, as we have in many other things, and we earnestly hope we shall be honored by an English representation. If you can do anything, dear Major, to bring it about, I shall be greatly indebted to you. Our people all say that we will surely have a team from Ireland, but you have not said so. Pray let me hear from you. I know you are not as active as you were, but you know who is and can exert a great influence. By all means let us have an Irish team. Accept most cordial expressions of respect and esteem from

ALEXANDER SHALER.

In the discussion which ensued it was proposed by Mr. John Rigby that before finally sending a reply to the American invitation they should ascertain whether Sir Henry Halford, on the part of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, proposed to make any further arrangements, instead of the "Imperial" team, which had been abandoned. But it seemed to the meeting that already, out of deference to British views and wishes, too much time had been allowed to elapse before replying to the American invitation; and a resolution was adopted unanimously "that the American invitation be accepted on the part of Ireland." The secretary was then directed to reply to the president of the National Rifle Association of America, accepting their invitation on the part of the Irish riflemen.

A sub-committee was also appointed to frame rules for the preliminary competitions to select the Irish team.

Mr. Rigby then moved and Major Leech seconded the following resolution, which was passed:—

Resolved, That a challenge be sent to the riflemen of America, through the Amateur Rifle Club of New York, to shoot a return match on similar terms to those already shot at Creedmoor in 1874, and Dollymount in 1875, save as to targets and rifles, which are to be Creedmoor targets, and any rifle according to Creedmoor rules. The match to take place as soon as possible after the Centennial matches.

You see the men who were defeated at Creedmoor and Dollymount do not like to lie down under their defeat. Their motto is, Resurgam.

The Freeman's Journal estimates the expenses connected with sending a first class team to America at $5,000, and has called for a national subscription. Major Leech has promised to contribute $2,500.

THE CHALLENGE FORMALLY ACCEPTED.

Yesterday the National Rifle Association received the following letter:—

Irish Rifle Association,
No. 110 Grafton Street, Dublin, March 23, 1876.

Gentlemen—I am requested by the Council of the Irish Rifle Association to acknowledge the receipt of the invitation of the National Rifle Association of America to the riflemen of Ireland to be represented in the matches contemplated in honor of the centennial anniversary of American independence.

The Council acknowledge with much pleasure, on behalf of Irish riflemen, the invitation in the cordial spirit in which it has been tendered, and I am to acquaint you that they propose to send a team of Irish riflemen to compete for the "championship of the world" upon the international occasion of the centennial of American independence. I have the honor to be, gentlemen, with much respect, your faithful servant,

HENRY H. FOSTER.

To the President and Secretary of the National Rifle Association of America.

SALE OF THOROUGHBRED STOCK.

A sale of thoroughbred stock, the property of Mr. Pierre Lorillard and Colonel McDaniels, was held yesterday morning at the New York Tattersalls by Major Charles W. Barker, the well known auctioneer. The sale attracted a large attendance of prominent gentlemen, among whom were Mr. Louis L. Lorillard, General Aristides Welch, of Chestnut Hill; Charles W. Bathgate, Dr. James Bathgate, James Galway and James Carr.

Mr. Lorillard's lot were the first offered at the hammer, and Persuader, a good looking chestnut, five years, by Revolver, dam Kinnikinick, by Ringold, was knocked down to Mr. J. H. Robbins for $210. The next lot was an old veteran Canwell, an imported chestnut horse, seventeen years, by Stockwell, dam Mary Bell, the dam of Strachino; he was sold cheap at $135. Atlas, a chestnut gelding, four years, by Asteroid, dam by Revenue, started the bidding and after some competition was awarded to Mr. F. B. Linklater for $400. Stockland, a three-year-old chestnut gelding, by imported Canwell, dam Melrose, by Childe Harold, was purchased by Mr. Charles Codart for $250. Merlin, a brown gelding, three years, by imported Eclipse, dam imported Merry Wife (own sister to Greensleeves), by Beadsman, was given to Mr. J. C. Drayton for $100. The last of Mr. Lorillard's lot, Vivien, a four-year-old chestnut filly, by imported Leamington, dam Coquette, by Lexington, was bought by Captain Moore, of Mobile, for $300.

Colonel McDaniels' lot comprise a bay colt, two years, by Oakland, dam Sarah B., by Planet, which fell for $100 to Charles W. Scott. A two-year-old chestnut gelding, by Oakland, dam imported Eastern Star, was also knocked down for $100 to Mr. C. R. Strong. A two-year-old bay gelding, by Oakland, out of a trotting mare, was bought by Mr. John Mahon for $130, and a chestnut mare, eight years, by Colossus, dam by imported Sovereign, was transferred to Major A. P. Green for $125. A number of wagons, harness and blankets were also sold during the sale.

TOURNAMENT AT ARMS.

The trial combat with military weapons, between Colonel T. H. Monstery and Professor Regis Senac, is to take place on Monday evening next at Tammany Hall. The contest will no doubt attract a large audience, as both the combatants are well known proficients in the use of arms.

PACIFIC MAIL.

STARTLING RUMORS AS TO THE FUTURE OF THE LINE.

From various sources a Herald reporter gathered yesterday ominous facts in relation to the above unfortunate steamship company. Said an ex-director:—"There is no doubt that the indebtedness of Pacific Mail to the Panama Company is in the neighborhood of $500,000, and that the warfare between Trenor W. Park and Jay Gould will continue to the bitter end. Thus far the victory rests with the former. In spite of injunctions the Panama Railroad, under the guise of the Panama Transit Company, is successfully running steamers in opposition to Pacific Mail, and now that the former company is determined to charge local rates on all through freight across the Isthmus, traffic by the old company's steamers soon must cease." On the other hand, it is asserted, by those in the confidence of Jay Gould, that the late issuance of $2,000,000 of bonds was to enable the wealthy managers of the mail company to absorb them, to pay off a floating debt which is mainly owed to Sydney Dillon and Gould. Another object they say was to finally bring the best iron steamers of the company, such as the City of Peking, City of Tokio, City of San Francisco and Acapulco, into their possession through foreclosure, when the business will be withdrawn from this port altogether and the steamers be employed on the China line entirely, that being profitable trade and acting

AS A DIRECT FEEDER TO THE UNION PACIFIC

Railroad. This seems plausible.

General J. G. McCulloch, Vice President of the Panama Railroad, told the reporter that no new developments had taken place in Pacific Mail; that suit had been entered for the recovery of money due, and that the next steamer of the Transit Company, the Crescent City, would certainly sail on the 20th ult. for Aspinwall.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1876.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be partly cloudy or clear.

NOTICE TO COUNTRY NEWSDEALERS.—For prompt and regular delivery of the HERALD by fast mail trains orders must be sent direct to this office. Postage free.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—Stocks were lower and the market heavy. Gold opened and closed at 112 7-8, with sales meanwhile at 112 5-8. Money on call was supplied at 3 and 4 per cent. Government securities were dull and investments only steady.

FUCHS, the butcher of Simmons, was placed on trial yesterday. There was no difficulty about the jury, and we see no signs of insanity in the defence.

FRENCH NEWSPAPERS will be the first to feel the beneficial effect of the late elections. The raising of the state of siege will not affect the outward appearance of things in the great cities to any extent.

OUR EXTRADITION TREATY with England seems to be difficult of application in the case of Winslow, and as the insufficiency of its provisions is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic it should not be difficult to amend them, no matter what becomes of Boston's favorite son.

A BUOY MISSING.—Hell Gate pilots report that the buoy indicating Man-of-War Rock, off Thirty-fourth street, East River, has been missing for the past month. The proper authorities will take notice, as this is a very dangerous point for vessels outward bound by Long Island Sound.

JOY TO NEW YORK!—Woe to the plundering horse car companies! Work has been begun at the Battery on the Rapid Transit road. Let the Supreme Court give us the confirmation of the Rapid Transit Commissioners' report, and then let us have a race between the constructors as to which will give us the first five miles of a stout, handsome double track road.,

THE KHEDIVE'S SAFETY lies, as we have pointed out, in his playing the money Powers of Europe against each other. Thus what he got from England for the canal shares brought a handsome sum from France to pay the interest on his loan. Now Italy joins hands with France to issue a new copper-fastened loan wherein to stow and secure the Khedive's floating debt, and so save him from financial shipwreck.

THE WEATHER TO-DAY promises to be cloudy, with probable rain. The storm, which was central in Iowa on Tuesday, has moved northward over the lake region, and is now passing northeastward through the St. Lawrence Valley. Warm southerly winds, followed by a westerly and northwesterly blow, with cold, are in the programme for New York. Ulsters are not yet out of season. They will go out with the oysters. In this respect there is a relation between fashion and fish.

THE RUSSIAN CRITICISMS upon Disraeli's statement, in arguing on behalf of the Royal Titles bill, that it was necessary, in view of Russian aggressions in Asia, to tell the subject peoples of India that England meant to hold Hindostan against all comers, have a strong justification. International courtesy should have closed the English Premier's mouth, but in his statements of the necessity for an imperial title this is not his only blunder.

THE DECISION IN THE DOLAN CASE is not an adjudication of the controversy between the two claimants to the office of Commissioners of Jurors. On that point the Court of Appeals merely decided that an officer de facto can summon jurors without vitiating a trial, provided he complies with the law. The Court of Appeals will make a separate decision on the question whether Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Douglas Taylor is the legal Commissioner of Jurors. The case was argued yesterday by A. Oakey Hall for Taylor and Mr. Evarts for Dunlap, but several days may elapse before the Court reaches a decision.

Four Per Cent Interest.

The great problem of the period is a reduction of the taxes which weigh so heavily on all the industries of the country. That class of politicians who masquerade as reformers are loud and obstreperous in professing a wish to alleviate the burden of taxation, and if their methods were as wise as their professions are noisy they would deserve commendation. They have hit the real tone of public feeling in their clamors for lower taxes, for there is nothing which the people so earnestly demand. But the small economies they propose in the expenses of the West Point cadets and curtailment of the salaries of public officers would bring so little relief that they are hardly worth considering, while Congress neglects so obvious and practicable a measure as reducing the enormous interest on the national debt.

We are still paying six per cent interest on the greater part of our public debt, while Great Britain pays only three per cent upon hers. It is discreditable to those who control our affairs that in the eleventh year after the close of the war we are still paying war rates for the use of money. The possibility of borrowing at four and a half per cent is officially recognized by the Secretary of the Treasury, who does not doubt that he could refund the five-twenty sixes at that rate if Congress would give him authority to issue long bonds. We believe that the whole debt could be refunded at four per cent with proper legislation and a skilful administration of the finances. This belief is founded on the fact that men are now buying government bonds at such prices that they get only four per cent for their money. At the Stock Exchange yesterday the price of United States five per cent bonds, redeemable in 1881, was 118, the price of gold yesterday being a shade less than 113. Now, supposing the currency to remain in the same state as at present for the ensuing five years, the government in redeeming these bonds in 1881 would pay the equivalent of 113 in currency—that is to say, it would pay 100 in gold, which is the same thing as 113 in currency. The present buyers at 118 would therefore lose five cents in five years, or one cent a year on each dollar of the investment. Deducting this one cent from the five per cent interest on the bonds it is plain that the net interest on the investment would be only four per cent. As people are found willing to purchase bonds redeemable in so short a period as five years at a price which barely reimburses the principal with four per cent, there ought to be no difficulty in disposing of bonds having forty years to run at the same rate. We are, therefore, justified in assuming that the national debt might be refunded at four per cent if we had able statesmen and financiers at the head of affairs.

The saving of interest would be sufficient to defray the whole civil expenses of the government. By the last debt statement, published on the 1st of this month, it appears that the public debt bearing interest in coin amounts to $1,695,037,250, on which the interest at four per cent would be $67,000,000. The Secretary of the Treasury, in his last annual report, estimated the interest payable in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, at $97,000,000, so that if we could reduce the rate on the whole interest bearing debt to four per cent there would be an annual saving of nearly $30,000,000.

There are various reasons why a government in good credit is able to borrow money considerably below the ordinary market rates. Consols or government bonds combine the advantages of productive fixed property and ready money. Property in real estate, ships or factories cannot be suddenly converted into money without great sacrifices, but there is seldom any difficulty in converting government bonds at their market value. The man who has government bonds locked up in his safe finds them as good as money in an emergency, and yet, unlike money thus locked up, they never cease to draw interest. If large sums are wanted bonds are easily convertible into cash; if small sums are wanted the bonds are unfailing collaterals on which money can always be borrowed in any ordinary state of the market. So convenient a form of property need not bear a high rate of interest to make it eagerly sought. Another reason why interest on government bonds need not be high is their exemption from State and municipal taxation. Other property pays an average of about two per cent in local taxes, and in this city about three per cent. A person here, who lends money on mortgage at seven per cent and pays three per cent taxes on his mortgages, realizes only four per cent net on his investment, and mortgages are inferior to government bonds in ready convertibility into money and as a collateral security for loans.

It is as shameful as it is wasteful for a government, in perfect credit like that of the United States, to be paying, in time of peace, higher rates for the use of money than private individuals. The very form of the bonds proves that it was not expected, at the time of their issue, that the government would continue to pay the enormous war rates of that period. The five-twenty bonds were made redeemable in five years from their date, in the expectation that by that time it would be no longer necessary to pay so high a rate of interest as six per cent. The ten-forty bonds rested in like manner on the idea that, after the expiration of ten years, five per cent might be a higher rate of interest than the government would need to pay. The five years have passed, the ten years have passed, and we are still paying six per cent on the greater portion of the war debt, which is a disgraceful proof of financial imbecility. Why should not our government, like that of Great Britain, have the full advantage of its great resources and assured credit? Why should the United States pay six per cent interest while England pays but three per cent? Why should the national Treasury derive no advantage from the utility and convenience of its bonds and their complete exemption from local taxation? There can be but one answer, and that answer is found in the incapacity of our rulers.

Of course the national debt cannot be refunded all at once in four per cent bonds. It is a process which requires time, and because it requires time it is necessary to begin. All this winter and spring have been wasted, the new five per cent loan having been all taken before the meeting of Congress, and we are still paying six per cent on more than a thousand millions. Nearly one-third of this sum is not redeemable until 1881, and no complaint is made in relation to that portion of the six per cent bonds. But there are $721,318,000 of six per cent bonds which became redeemable in 1870, 1872 and 1873, and it is monstrous that the country is compelled to pay six per cent on that vast sum when private individuals are every day buying government bonds in the Stock Exchange at prices which yield them only four per cent net interest.

There is but one remedy for this disgraceful state of things, and that is for the people to take up the four per cent cry and insist on being heard. Not only our American rulers but all rulers are slow to move in any important change until an aroused public sentiment pushes them along. It is by the press, by popular meetings, and by the live part of political platforms, that governments are impelled. During the corn law agitation in England one of the league orators illustrated the necessity of pushing on the Peel Ministry with popular demonstrations by a parody on these quaint rhymes:—

When the wind blows,
Then the mill goes;
When the wind drops,
Then the mill stops.

The parody was in this form:—

When the wind blows,
Then the Peel goes;
When the wind drops,
Then the Peel stops.

Nothing was ever more historically true, for the powerful breath of popular sentiment forced Sir Robert Peel to take up and carry the reform. Our government must in the same manner be forced to give the country relief from the heavy burden of exorbitant interest. Let this demand be put into all the political platforms; let the whole press of the country lend its breath to kindle the agitation; let a strong cry for a reduction of this needless burden be raised in all the marts of business and all the walks of industry; let the wind keep the mill in motion until this grist is ground, without heavy toll to a syndicate.

A Suggestion for Cheap Cabs.

It seems to us that it would be an excellent idea for the American District Messenger Company to endeavor to supply a want long felt in this city—that of cheap cabs. Already this company has much of the machinery necessary for the service, and all that is required to carry the design into execution are the vehicles. A little capital will secure these, and thereby a very useful company will add largely to its business and its profits. Nothing could be more serviceable or convenient than this plan, if carried into execution. A system of signals like those now in use for the employment of messengers can be adopted for the ordering of carriages, and thus it will be possible to procure a vehicle for any purpose and at reasonable rates without being compelled to go in search of it. The company has its wires in every direction; its instruments are to be found in many private residences and public resorts, and its offices and stations are located all over the city. Its business is of that character that a cab service would be growth in a legitimate direction. Most of our citizens testify to the usefulness of the messenger and telegraph service when properly carried out. Formerly it was next to impossible to send a message to any part of the city except through one's own servants or by an unknown or untrustworthy messenger. Now a responsible company undertakes to do this peculiar and necessary service at a given signal, which every citizen can make from his own house; and if the company will add the cab service to its other business its usefulness will be greatly extended. The suggestion strikes us as entirely feasible and one that ought to be acted upon without delay. Before the district messenger system was adopted there were people who predicted that it could not succeed, and if the company acts upon this idea of supplying cheap cabs at short notice we believe that there will be as many false prophets in this instance as there were in the other case. There is nothing impracticable in the scheme. To a large class in this city cabs and carriages are as much a necessity as are the street cars to the working people. The reason why they are so seldom used is because the charges are too high and they are too difficult to obtain when wanted. In order to procure a carriage most people are required to go as far as their contemplated journey itself, and then it is not certain they will be able to get what they want, even at the extortionate rates now demanded by hackmen. The adoption of the plan we suggest would obviate all this, bringing a cab or carriage to every man's door without any search or effort on his part, and the system could not fail to prove very successful.

THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY.—Every now and then the Aldermen vote this imponderable commodity to distinguished persons, and on exceptional occasions accompany it with a gold box; but it is doubtful if the freedom of the city has any more substantial existence than appears in such holiday demonstrations or any value to ordinary people. Just now a gentleman has this problem before the courts. He thought he possessed the freedom of the city generally, and particularly the right to the ordinary use of the sidewalks. But he came to a point where that part of the street was occupied by people engaged in delivering a safe. Their tackle crossed the walk in such a way as to throw him down and cause a severe injury, and he demands damages. All the people will be interested to know what the judgment in this case will tell—whether the sidewalk can be occupied by a safe company or any one else, to the exclusion of its secure use by the public?

MR. DANA AND THE SENATE.—Mr. Dana is not confirmed because he wrote a letter that any gentleman would have written in the same circumstances. His defeat will tend to remove from the shoulders of the President some portion of the responsibility for many very bad appointments, for people will now reason that the President knew the Senate better than others did all the time, and that he appointed to vacancies as good men as he could get confirmed.

The Rejection of Mr. Dana—The Mission to England.

The vote in the Senate on the nomination of R. H. Dana, Jr., to be Minister to England, will alarm and distress the conservative sentiment of the country. The Tribune, whose Washington correspondent seems to be a member of the executive session, tells us that, on the motion to confirm Mr. Dana, twenty democrats and eleven republicans voted against him, and seventeen republicans in his favor. It is painful to see in this list antagonistic to Mr. Dana such men as Bayard, Kernan, Thurman and Randolph. We can understand how the leaders of an opposition party should not stand in the way of the blunders of the party in power. There is a political law, which seems to meet the approval of representative legislative bodies here and in England, to the effect that the duty of an opposition is to oppose, destroy, overturn. This is the theory that animates the liberals in their war upon the proposal to call the Queen Empress. If the democrats in the Senate meant to throw odium on their body they did it in voting against Mr. Dana, for if Mr. Dana had been supported by them he would have been confirmed.

It would have been much better for Messrs. Bayard, Kernan and Randolph to have waived any party advantage that may come from the defeat of Dana and gone upon the record as supporting the President whenever he nominates gentlemen to office. No better man than Dana has been named for high place in many a day. His defeat is disheartening to all who believe in republican governments as the best method of securing good men in office. It only remains for the President to send some man into the Senate as Minister who will command the confidence of the country and of both parties. The opposition to Mr. Dana began in personal pique. It took a party shape as soon as the World opposed him. The victory is the result of an alliance between General Butler, "machine" republicans and the democratic Senators. Now let the President give us a nomination with a character so high and pure that there cannot even be a criticism upon it.

Such a candidate is Henry W. Longfellow. Mr. Longfellow is an honored, illustrious and gifted citizen. His name is a household word throughout England. He would do credit to both countries. There would be no cabal against him. The fact that he is a literary man should not be a bar to his nomination. Our literature has furnished some of its most famous representatives to diplomacy. Joel Barlow, whom Byron was disposed to regard as the American Homer, was our Minister to France in the great Napoleon's days; Washington Irving was Minister to Spain; Edward Everett was Minister to England; his brother Alexander, to China, Spain and the Netherlands; Bayard Taylor was secretary to our Russian Legation; Mr. Bancroft served us at two courts, London and Berlin; Henry Wheaton was sent to Prussia and Denmark by Mr. Van Buren; Mr. Marsh is now in Rome and Mr. Boker in St. Petersburg; Hawthorne represented us in Liverpool and Howard Payne in the East; Motley was at Vienna and London, and Robert Dale Owen served us at the now extinct court of the two Sicilies. Therefore it would be a very graceful thing for General Grant to send Longfellow to London. It is a nomination that would meet with universal favor, not only in England but in America.

DOM PEDRO II.—Yesterday at noon the Emperor of Brazil sailed from the port of Pará, his last port of call on his way to New York. The Hevelius, our special despatch announces, may be expected here as early as the 15th inst., which is the Saturday before Easter. The parting of His Majesty from his subjects at Pará was most auspicious, a night and day having been spent in a round of loyal demonstrations, described in our despatch. From the plan of the imperial tour telegraphed us it appears that His Majesty's stay in New York will be of short duration. It will be observed that the French Republic sent a representative to Pará to greet the Emperor, and we hope the hint will not be thrown away on our national and municipal authorities in urging them to extend a hospitable welcome to this ruler of a great and friendly nation coming to do the Republic honor in its Centennial Celebration.

THE IRISH RIFLEMEN are not only coming to shoot in the centennial match, but to advance the old and honorable contest with our boys, in which they have twice sustained defeat, to a third trial. They will be heartily welcomed. We are sorry that the English riflemen still apparently sulk because they did not have their way about an "Imperial" team. In view of the Royal Titles bill they must now see that such a style would only be applicable to India, whence, no doubt, a number of fine riflemen—tiger shooters—could be chosen. Sir Henry Halford's resignation from the captaincy of the English team should leave the way open for the selection of riflemen for our contest. The gallant Scotch and Irish teams deserve great credit for their prompt responses to our invitations.

DANGEROUS WALLS AND BUILDINGS have caused so many accidents that there is no excuse for those responsible for their care when unsuspecting pedestrians are crushed beneath the ruins of such buildings that are left unguarded by proper fences. The latest accident in Division street, by which several children have been dangerously if not fatally injured, shows that proper precautions for the safety of passers-by were not taken. We hope that the authorities will take steps to have the owner of this rickety structure severely punished, and that the friends of the injured will promptly sue for and recover heavy damages from Mr. Daniel Woolf. An example is needed.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER continues to rise steadily, and at Memphis is half an inch higher than the flood level of 1874 and eleven inches higher than that of last August. Fears are entertained of a still greater rise, which will raise the river above the highest level on record. The river measurement at Memphis is now thirty-four feet eleven inches. When the waters reach the danger line of thirty-four feet at this point the country opposite Memphis is overflowed. At thirty-four feet seven inches on the gauge the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad is flooded. If, as is anticipated, a further rise of one foot occurs we may have to record one of the most disastrous inundations that has ever devastated the Mississippi Valley.

Mr. Kilbourne's Revenge.

None of the conspiracies which have been lately exposed in Washington have astonished the country more than that in which Mr. Hallet Kilbourne has just been detected. This gentleman was put in jail because he would not tell what he knew of the real estate pool, and since he has been there has apparently had a better time than if he had been at liberty. His carte for breakfast, dinner and supper, which we printed a few days ago, show that imprisonment has not had any bad effect on his appetite. Lent did not discourage his ideas of epicurean feeding. No man ever ate so much in so short a time. The enormous consumption of spring chicken, tenderloin, terrapin, Philadelphia squab, birds, buttered parsnip, French peas, stewed peaches and sardines of which Mr. Kilbourne has been guilty attracted the attention of Mr. Glover, the Chairman of the Real Estate Pool Committee, and now the terrible explanation of his diabolical appetite is plain. The dark and damning fact is apparent that Mr. Kilbourne is in a conspiracy to cripple the investigations in which Congress is engaged by exhausting the appropriations.

Breakfast, dinner and supper; supper, luncheon and dinner; dinner, luncheon and breakfast, follow each other in Mr. Kilbourne's little bill, like the buff trip slip, the blue trip slip and the pink trip slip in the railroad rhyme, but with this difference, that six cent fare or eight cent fare were far below his sublime ideas. He held that his "lieber Freund" should "punch in the presence of the prisonaire, a ten dollar check for a dinner fare." When Mr. Kilbourne was locked up in his double cell he was naturally much enraged with the government. He was in a position not unlike that of Cousin Joe in "The Rough Diamond," who was kicked down stairs by a gentleman who afterward invited him to dine. "Well," said Cousin Joe, as he picked himself up, "if I can't be rewenged on him I'll be rewenged on his wittles." So it was with Mr. Kilbourne and the government; he determined to be revenged—and he was.

What other motive than that of revenge or conspiracy can be attributed to a man who eats for breakfast one sirloin steak, $1; one cold turkey, $1; one tenderloin steak, $2; two squabs, $1 50; one shad (Lent), $1, besides bacon, eggs, potatoes, cold tongue, chicken salad, water cresses, apples, iced cream, cakes, cucumbers, &c., and follows it up with a dinner which respect for our readers forbids us to describe, whose insatiable maw devours food of the value of $25 40 in a day? Does Mr. Kilbourne eat such enormous meals as this in a state of freedom when he has to foot the bills himself? We think not. When at liberty he probably breakfasts on tea and toast, lunches at a bar, where he gets a bowl of soup for a glass of whiskey and dines on stewed potatoes, which, we have the highest authority for saying, are "mighty filling at the price." No; revenge alone could inspire such gnawing hunger combined with the cheering consolation that the bill would not go to him but to the Chairman of the Real Estate Pool Committee. Mr. Kilbourne, like Cardinal Wolsey, is evidently a man of the "most unbounded stomach," and when we mark the steady growth of his bills for "breakfast, lunch, dinner and supper" from $12 50 to $25 40, we find a practical illustration of how "increase of appetite has grown by what it fed on." Let us hope the consciousness of his fearful crime against the government will sit lightly upon his—well, let us say, his breast.

We learn from the "True History of the Bastile" that the State prisoners therein confined were allowed a certain sum for their meals, and that they frequently entered into conspiracy with their jailers to speculate in the provision market. There is good reason to suspect that this has been the case with Mr. Kilbourne, Boss Shepherd, John O. Evans, Sam Young, the jailers and Freund, and that they have endeavored to get up a corner in terrapin and shad, Kilbourne being employed as the active agent in raising all luxuries to exorbitant rates. It is certain that the price of edibles has increased since his arrest. Thus we find this daring man engaged not only in a conspiracy to ruin the government by exhausting the already depleted Treasury, but also in a plot to create a famine in Washington. Well, let Mr. Kilbourne go on in his mad revenge. He may ruin the government and make a fortune out of the markets, but in the end there are well founded hopes that he will perish of indigestion. Eighteen dollars' worth of food a day would destroy even the nine stomachs of a camel or give an ostrich the dyspepsia.

DISASTERS ALONG THE COAST have been distressingly frequent during the last month, and many a stout mariner has found a watery grave within sight of the treacherous land. The south coast of Long Island, being low and unmarked by prominent topographical features, is one of the most dangerous during the season of storms. The loss of the schooner Helen J. Halloway may be set down as due to a miscalculation by her master as to his true position, and the roar of the breakers was the only warning he received of his mistake. On such a dangerous coast, lying right in the track of coasting vessels bound north, an additional number of lightships is needed for the safety of navigation. Two of these, at least, should cover the south coast of Long Island, and from points not less than ten miles to seaward.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE BOAT RACE.—We publish on another page of the HERALD this morning an interesting communication from an old Cambridge oar in relation to the Oxford and Cambridge boat race. The communication explains not only the difference in the style of rowing of both crews, but accounts, in a great measure, for the great change which has taken place in the Cambridge boat, and which helped, within the last week, to make the light blue the favorite for winning.

Freshet Waves on the Western Rivers.

The rise and fall of the Western rivers during seasons of rain are governed by the movements of the freshet waves created by the accumulation of waters from their respective watersheds. The average rates of movement of these volumes in twenty-four hours, on the principal rivers, have been carefully computed from data derived from a series of observations extending over a considerable period, and with the following results:—On the Missouri River, from Fort Benton to Omaha, the freshet wave moves at the rate of 157 miles in twenty-four hours, and from Omaha to the junction with the Mississippi at St. Louis 126 miles; on the Upper Mississippi River, from St. Paul to Davenport, the rate of movement is 37 miles, and from Davenport to St. Louis, 67 miles; on the Lower Mississippi, from St. Louis to Vicksburg, the freshet wave travels at the rate of 94 miles per twenty-four hours, and from Vicksburg to New Orleans, 100 miles; on the Alleghany River, from Oil City to Pittsburg, 120 miles; on the Ohio River, from Pittsburg to Louisville, 124 miles, and from Louisville to Cairo 60 miles; on the Cumberland River, from Nashville to the junction with the Ohio, 100 miles. The above figures give the average velocity; but variations occur with the increase or decrease of the volumes of water carried by the channels. The difference between the freshet wave velocities on the different rivers, and even on the several sections of the same river, is due to the more or less rapid drainage or accumulation of drainage from the watersheds at certain portions of the river system. The velocity increases from St. Paul to New Orleans, on the Mississippi, because of an increase of volume southward, but it decreases from Fort Benton to St. Louis because the river grade decreases per mile in the Lower Missouri Valley, and the feeders or tributaries drain the great plains, from whence there is but a very limited quantity of water discharged into the rivers, and that very slowly, the Missouri deriving its principal volume from its sources in the Rocky Mountains. The Alleghany and Upper Ohio show a comparatively high freshet wave velocity, because these rivers drain watersheds of markedly abrupt topography, which discharge their waters into the rivers with extraordinary rapidity and thus generate high but short freshet waves. In the Lower Ohio, from Louisville to Cairo, the grade being comparatively flat, the impetus of the wave is checked and the velocity reduced to one-half that on the upper section. A knowledge of the movements of these freshet waves on all rivers adapted for internal navigation is of the utmost importance, and the timely notice now given of the approach of floods by the Signal Service Department should enable every intelligent resident along the threatened line to guard against the loss of either merchandise, produce or floating property.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD BY CABLE.]

PARA, April 4, 1876.

The Hevelius, with the imperial party on board, steamed up the estuary of the Rio Pará and dropped anchor in the Bay of Guajará, opposite the city of Belem or Pará, at five o'clock this afternoon.

REJOICINGS ASHORE.

The arrival was the signal for an outburst of loyal enthusiasm ashore. A smart rain storm which came on could scarcely dampen the ardor of the populace.

ILLUMINATIONS.

As the night fell the town was brilliantly illuminated, presenting a splendid sight from the ship.

A LEVEE.

His Imperial Majesty Dom Pedro held a levée on board the Hevelius, which, in spite of the rain, was attended by the principal officials and most prominent residents of Pará, with their ladies. The scene in the imperial cabin was very brilliant.

DIRECT TO NEW YORK.

The Hevelius will sail direct for New York to-morrow, where it is expected we shall arrive on the 15th inst.

IN THE UNITED STATES.

The Emperor's tour, as now perfected, will be as follows:—

A TRIP TO CALIFORNIA.

Immediately after His Majesty's arrival, upon the arrangements for establishing the Empress Theresa in the East being made, the imperial party will start overland for San Francisco.

THE EXHIBITION OPENING.

Thence His Majesty will return in time to take part in the opening ceremonies of the Exhibition at Philadelphia.

WEST AND SOUTH.

The ceremonies over the Emperor will make a tour through the coal and oil regions of Pennsylvania to Cincinnati, Louisville and the Mammoth caves of Kentucky. Thence the party will proceed to St. Louis and descend the Mississippi River to New Orleans.

AT THE EXHIBITION.

From the Crescent City the Emperor will return to Philadelphia and spend fifteen days inspecting the Centennial Exhibition.

THE NORTH.

His Majesty will then go to New York and enjoy the sail up the Hudson, visiting Saratoga and Niagara Falls, and then cross to Canada, going as far as Montreal.

SAILING FOR EUROPE.

The city of Boston will be his next point of interest, whence His Majesty will sail for Europe on the 12th of July.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME TO THE EMPEROR—A "TE DEUM" RECEPTION AT THE PALACE—BOUND FOR NEW YORK.

PARA, April 5, 1876.

Every one on board the Hevelius was astir shortly after daybreak this morning, and the Emperor, Empress and suite landed at seven o'clock, amid sunshine, showers and salutes of artillery.

A GALA SCENE.

The town was astir and wore all the appearance of a general holiday. The shipping in the harbor was gayly hung with bunting. At the waterside the piers were thronged with dense masses of the inhabitants, whose picturesque costumes lent a wonderful warmth of color to the scene.

ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED.

On landing their majesties met with a most enthsiastic reception from the populace, whose vivas rose in one long storm of welcome. The President and civic and military authorities of the Province fo Grão Pará presented themselves to their majesties.

THE DECORATED STREETS.

An imposing procession headed and flanked by military was formed and passed along the streets, the houses of which were festooned with many-colored flags. Triumphal arches, handsomely decorated and bearing inscriptions of welcome, spanned the routes at intervals. Multitudes of citizens, in holiday attire, from the balconies and streets cheered continuously and waved their handkerchiefs as the imperial cavalcade passed by.

A THANKSGIVING.

The procession halted at the cathedral, where a solemn "Te Deum" was sung.

AT THE PALACE.

After the religious services the military procession formed again, and led the way to the palace, where a brilliant reception was held, lasting two hours.

HONORS FROM THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.

The French government ordered the Governor of Cayenne to meet the Emperor here. The Governor was at the reception, having arrived here in the steam corvette Casabianca.

ON BOARD AGAIN.

The reception over, the Emperor and Empress embarked once more amid a recurrence of the loyal demonstrations. They were accompanied on board by the authorities, who only said farewell when the vessel was ready to sail.

At noon the Hevelius steamed away for New York amid parting salvos.

SKETCH OF PARA.

Pará, or, as otherwise known, Belem, is the capital city of the province of Grao Pará. It is a seaport, and is situated on the Bay of Guajará, at the mouth of the estuary of the Rio Pará. It has a population of about 35,000, about one-ninth of whom are slaves. Francisco Caldeira Costello Branco was the founder of the city, which was begun in 1616. In the Empire of Brazil Pará ranks as the fourth city in commercial importance. It is remarkable for the magnificence of its numerous public edifices, among which the cathedral church of São João Baptista and the Governor's palace are most celebrated. The dwellings are principally built of stone and are neat and handsome in appearance. The streets, though laid out with geometric regularity, are ill-paved and miry. There is a new and an old city, the former being shaded by palms and mangaburas, which line the long thoroughfares. The buildings and every inhabitant, when out of doors, are, during the warm season, discolored by the red dust which the prevailing high winds sweep from the surface of the street and drive through the air. There are several forts in the harbor which, although deep enough for all vessels, is difficult of access. Pará is surrounded by a fertile country, which yields abundant crops. India rubber to the value of $6,000,000 is exported annually. Its imports during each year amount to about $5,000,000. It is predicted that Pará will become, in a few years, the principal commercial city in Northern Brazil. Nine lines of steamers ply fortnightly between it and the Upper Amazon, and two lines of steamships call monthly from Europe and one on the voyage to and from New York.

Pará can boast of beneficent public institutions, among which are an extensive library and reading room, a botanic garden, a university and lyceum, numerous public schools, half a dozen banks and a theatre.

The climate is not unhealthy, although certain maladies, it is said, are induced by use of the water of the city wells.

WINSLOW'S EXTRADITION—SERIOUS QUESTIONS OF INTERNATIONAL LAW—'CHANGE CLOSES DULL BUT SLIGHTLY UPWARD—SIR HENRY HALFORD RESIGNS—THE CAPTAIN OF THE FRANCONIA ON TRIAL.

LONDON, April 5, 1876.

The Times this morning, referring to the case of Winslow, says:—"After two months from the date of his committal Winslow will be entitled to his discharge, unless the judges hold that the events which have occurred constitute sufficient cause to the contrary within the meaning of the twelfth section of the Extradition act. Whether Winslow is to be given up or not must depend upon whether the United States government will or can arrange to restrict the charge upon which he is tried so as to satisfy the Extradition act. We can have no wish to give shelter to American criminals, but of course our law must be obeyed by our own Executive, and strong grounds would have to be shown before we should alter our law on a point where it has been solemnly recognized by many treaties. The truth is our Extradition Treaty with the United States is very insufficient. Negotiations have long been going on for its improvement, and it is to be hoped that the present complication will hasten this. Meanwhile it will be remembered that all we ask is reciprocity; for already, by our own act, we could not try an English forger surrendered by the United States except for an extradition crime which might be proved by facts established in America. It is a matter of wonder this question has not arisen before, but now that it has been raised our government would appear to have no discretion in the matter."

ON 'CHANGE.

There is—forenoon—considerable depression on the Stock Exchange to-day, and speculative securities are declining under pressure to sell.

Business on the Stock Exchange closed at six P. M. dull, but the depression was less marked than in the forenoon.

A RUSSIAN BLOW AGAINST THE INTERESTS OF THE "SICK MAN"—AN OMINOUS HINT CONCERNING THE SEASON FOR WAR.

LONDON, April 6, 1876.

The Russian Telegraphic Agency publishes the following:—Despite the happy conclusion of an armistice the general situation of the Oriental question has rather been aggravated. The Porte has relapsed into inactivity and leaves the European Cabinet to work for peace without aiding them by the application of reforms. On the other hand the revival of Mohammedan fanaticism is announced. The recent accounts of massacres of Christians are confirmed. The Christians are calling for reprisals, and 5,000 insurgents have entered the districts of Bihacs and Travnik.

All these incidents are the more serious because they occur at the beginning of spring.

ENGLISH INTERPRETATION OF THE RUSSIAN REMARKS.

The Times' Paris correspondent points out the special gravity of the above statement, as the despatches of the Russian Telegraphic Agency are always strictly in keeping with the opinions of the Russian government. The tenor of this despatch seems to show that Europe will at last know the immediate object of Russia's recent proceedings.

THE MOHAMMEDANS JOINING THE INSURRECTION.

THE FRENCH ASSEMBLY COMPELS MACMAHON TO AID THE KHEDIVE.

LONDON, April 5, 1876.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the action of France in the Khedive's behalf was precipitated by the remonstrance of the leaders of the majority in the Assembly, who, indeed, formally intimated to the government that further waiting upon English plans would compel a parliamentary attack. This intimation was made at the end of last week, and known to represent so much popular feeling that it led to definite action.

THE ITALIANS TO AID FOR THE RELIEF OF KHEDIVE.

The French government has resolved to co-operate with Italy without further reference to England. They will give active support, on the grounds of what they conceive to be public policy, to the proposal to raise a new loan to supersede the floating debt, which is the Khedive's real difficulty.

THE INTEREST ON THE BONDS OF THE REPUBLIC—THE PRESIDENT ELECT ON HIS WAY TO EUROPE.

HAVANA, April 5, 1876.

President elect Prado, of Peru, has arrived here from Aspinwall on his way to England via New York.

The object of his journey is to make some agreement with the holders of Peruvian bonds in Europe by which the payments of interest in future may be placed on a firm basis.

A POWDER MILL EXPLODES.

HALF A MILLION WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED—THREE MEN AND A BOY KILLED.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 5, 1876.

At five o'clock this afternoon the city was thrown into consternation by three terrible explosions, succeeding each other at intervals of a few seconds. The people rushed into the streets in terror, horses ran away, windows were blown in, doors thrown from their hinges, chimneys blown down and many buildings badly injured. The cause of these terrible explosions was not known until an immense volume of smoke was seen rising from Arsenal Hill, immediately north of the city. Upon the hill were four powder magazines, one of Walker Bros., for the California Powder Company, containing one and a half car loads of powder; one of Walker Bros., for the Oriental Powder Company, containing half a car load of powder; one of Zion's Co-operative Institution for the Hazard Powder Company, containing ten tons of powder, and one of Ben Jennings, for the Dupont Powder Company, containing fourteen tons of powder, all of which exploded.

There were no buildings very close to the magazines. The water works buildings and a flouring mill on City Creek were riddled with boulders. Immense boulders fell crushing through buildings throughout the city, some falling a mile distant. There were three men at work at one of these magazines. All that can be found of them are small pieces of flesh, the largest being a portion of a foot in a boot. Their names are not known. Mrs. Vannatta, of the Nineteenth ward, was struck by a boulder and killed. Quite a number of other persons were injured, and perhaps other deaths may occur. One lady died from fright. The cause of the explosion cannot be ascertained. It is claimed that the men at work were smoking. Others state that some person fired a shot into one of the magazines. An immense amount of glass was broken throughout the city. The damage to glass alone will probably be nearly $50,000.

John Rodden, a boy in the Twentieth ward, was also struck by a boulder and killed.

Two boys, one named Richardson and a son of Archie Hill, went after stock this morning, taking their guns with them. Human remains found near the exploded magazine have been identified as those of these boys. One of their hands was found clutching a duck. It is supposed that they had fired into one of the magazines, causing the explosion.

It is now stated that no men were at work on any of the magazines.

AN ANTHRACENE EXPLOSION.

THE WORKS OF MESSRS. KIRK & CO. BURNED—A LOSS OF SIXTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5, 1876.

This afternoon a tank filled with anthracene in the works of Warren Kirk and Co., adjoining the Point Breeze Gas Works, on the bank of the Schuylkill River, exploded. The anthracene department caught fire, and, together with its contents, was destroyed. The main building of stone was also burned, with its contents. The flames were communicated to a barge loaded with lime, but were extinguished without much damage. The total loss is estimated at $60,000, and the insurance is $10,000. The firm was supplying the Centennial Commission daily with 500 barrels of a patent composition for paving. William Dutton, a workman, who was on the roof of the building, was thrown fifteen feet, but escaped serious injury. A fireman named James Neally was seriously burned.

THE FORT PEASE DISASTER.

THE CALL OF THE SETTLERS FOR AID—THE KILLED AND WOUNDED—THE COLONIZATION ABANDONED.

FORT ELLIS, W. T., March 21, 1876.

The following is the letter addressed to Major Brisbin by the Fort Pease settlers just previous to the disastrous assault by Indians upon the little colony:—

We, the undersigned bona fide settlers and citizens of Big Horn, having settled here upon the public domain, on the 24th day of June, 1875, for the purpose of making for ourselves homes and developing the resources of the country, find ourselves unable to accomplish anything, from the fact the "Sioux Indians" in the immediate vicinity of the place daily harass us, kill our citizens, run off, steal and kill our stock.

Of our colony who immigrated here, numbering less than fifty men, five have been killed and nine wounded by the Indians. We have lived in hopes all the summer season that winter and cold weather would drive the Indians to their homes, but to our surprise they are still lingering here and in larger forces than in warm weather.

On the 2d day of January, 1876, five men went out to kill some meat for camp use, and when out only one mile, in full view of our post, they were attacked by Sioux Indians, one man killed and the other four wounded. All their horses were killed.

The Indians hide around in the brush and await a favorable opportunity for some one to come along, and then shoot him down before he is aware of danger. We have stayed here this long and undergone all the hardships incident to such life. We find a very fine climate and a productive soil, suitable for our purpose of farming and establishing a prosperous settlement. Being situated on a navigable stream, we are anxious to stay if you can under any view of the case render us protection. If you could send troops to check the havoc of these hostile Sioux Indians we would ever pray, Your Honor, &c.

F. V. Wilson, Wesley O. Millikin, William Watson, J. Tousaint, Joseph H. Jesse, John Riley, M. J. Cunningham, C. B. Irving, John McKenzie, Jacob Ambrose, John W. Williamson, John T. Ford, John Barker, James O'Brian, Neill Gillis, B. Dexter, H. B. Colter, J. Norton, A. T. Garhoe, John Dolan, Joseph Anderson, H. B. Boltus, N. Borcharat, Tyler Bevins, Daniel Blair, Edward Fox, E. S. Topping, Joseph Hill, Elias Carter, E. J. Hubbie, B. Stafford, Edward Forrest, William Dunbar, James Devines, F. B. Mullen, Duncan McCrew, H. M. Taylor, N. Norton, O. S. Hubble, George Herndrew, William Smith, G. C. Squire, James Parker and Andrew Oustot.

GOING FOR A RESCUE.

Soon after this letter was written 400 Indians attacked the little colony and drove them into their stronghold, Fort Pease. The fighting continued for several days, and many Indians were killed. The settlers lost two of their best men killed and several wounded.

On the 14th of February Paul McCormick and O. S. Hubble volunteered to go to the settlements and carry the news of the dangerous situation of the colonists. They set out in a blinding snow storm, and after a perilous journey of six days reached Bozeman City. The alarm was given, and a delegation of citizens called on the commanding officer at Fort Ellis and asked him to send troops to the succor of the men at Pease. General Terry was telegraphed, and he ordered the troops to move at once. Four companies of cavalry, a battery, two companies of citizens and fifty friendly Crow Indians, under command of Major Brisbin, United States Army, marched and on the 4th day of March came in sight of the beleaguered fort. The flag was still flying, and the little garrison fired a salute of welcome from their iron twelve-pounder.

Eighteen white men and one negro were found in the fort. The following are their names:—John S. Craine, John McKenzie, John Barker, Hugh Norton, Daniel Blair, John Williamson, J. T. Ford, William Watson, James O'Brian, William Smith, Joseph Anderson, Duncan McCrea, Edward Fox, F. V. Wilson, C. R. Morris, N. Borcharat, Albert Goehde, E. S. Topping and Joseph Hill, colored.

On the 6th of March the fort was evacuated and the flag left flying. All the goods and men were brought away, and on the 16th of March they arrived safely at Bozeman.

THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

In the attempt to lodge a settlement at Fort Pease, which is located at the mouth of the Big Horn River, where it joins the Yellowstone, the following men were killed by Indians:—James Edwards, Samuel Shirley, Fred Hewlin, P. G. Sweeney, Joseph Jesse and Orin Mason. The following named men were wounded, but will recover:—Patrick Hyde, shot in the elbow; W. O. Milliken, in the shoulder; Tyler Blevens, in the body; Jefferson Thompson, finger shot off; James Doing, arm broken; Neal Gillis, shot through the thigh; Byron Nulten, in the leg; and H. M. Taylor, thumb shot off. It was confidently expected that the Indians would attack the citizens and troops on the march, but they kept out of their way.

Fort Pease was abandoned on the 4th of March, and on the 6th the Crow Indians report the Sioux appeared in great numbers and burned the fort to the ground.

COLONIZATION ABANDONED.

A heavy body of Sioux followed the troops thirty miles up the Yellowstone, but did not venture to attack or even come in sight of them. Fort Pease was located on Sitting Bull's camping grounds, and all attempts to make a settlement there have been abandoned for the present. F. D. Pease, Zeth Daniels, Paul McCormick, B. Dexter, John McKenzie and William Smith were the proprietors of the former settlement, and they have lost heavily by the failure of their enterprise. They had laid out a town, located farms and were building a steamer to carry on trade along the Yellowstone.

THE WHISKEY TRIALS.

A STATEMENT BY CONSTANTINE MAGUIRE, EX-UNITED STATES REVENUE COLLECTOR—THE COURT READY TO SENTENCE.

ST. LOUIS, April 5, 1876.

In the United States Circuit Court to-day the case of Constantine Maguire, ex-United States revenue collector in this district, and who pleaded guilty to four counts in an indictment against him some time ago, was called with a view of determining the amount of punishment to inflict on him. Maguire's counsel claimed that the counts in the indictment to which the defendant pleaded guilty should be merged in one, as they all charged the same offence, while District Attorney Dyer contended they should be considered separately and sentence passed upon each.

It was finally agreed that Mr. Maguire should make a statement in mitigation of punishment, and he took the stand for that purpose.

He first stated that at the close of the McKee trial his counsel and counsel for the government had a consultation, and he (Maguire) was advised to plead guilty to certain counts in the indictment against him, which he did, but with the understanding that these counts would be merged into one and that punishment would not be cumulative.

He then made a long statement to the Court relative to his administration of the office of Collector and to such matters regarding whiskey frauds as came to his knowledge. He claimed he had violated no law; that he reported all irregularities on the part of distillers and rectifiers which were reported to him, to his superior officer, General McDonald, at once and ever stood ready to use his best exertions in investigating the charges against all parties and in ferreting out all alleged frauds. He repeatedly made reports to his superior, McDonald, of irregularities charged against distillers, and was always told by McDonald that he would investigate them. He also stated that he was powerless to effect much in this direction for the reason that the Supervisor was not only his ranking officer but that while he, the collector, had the assignment of gaugers and storekeepers the Supervisor could countermand his orders, make assignments over his head, and in fact actually control his office.

The Avery case was also brought up for review but laid over till to-morrow with the understanding that either party could file an additional brief before that time.

A CURIOUS FORFEITURE CASE.

BRISTOW AS COUNSEL FOR THE OWNERS OF A SMUGGLING VESSEL FAILS TO CLEAR THEM—THEIR FINE REMITTED AFTER HE BECOMES SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

MILWAUKEE, April 5, 1876.

In 1869 the bark Mary Merritt was forfeited to the District Court here for violation of the customs laws, Bristow, now Secretary of the Treasury, being counsel for the defendant owners, who were Trice Brothers, of Kentucky. An appeal was had to the Circuit Court here and Judge Drummond sustained the forfeiture in April, 1871. The case was then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, which sustained Drummond's decision, in April, 1874. The papers were next taken before Richardson, then Secretary of the Treasury, on a petition to remit the forfeiture. Richardson refused the appeal, but on May 15, 1874, Richardson sent a despatch to the District Attorney here to suspend proceedings till further instructed.

Weiss, the Deputy Collector, who was entitled to the moiety value of the forfeiture, heard of this, and went to Washington, the result of which was that Richardson appointed a committee of three experts to report on the matter, one of whom was Richardson's brother-in-law, who did not, however, act. Bristow argued the case before the committee on behalf of the defendants; but finally the committee reported adversely to the petition.

Then Richardson resigned and Bristow was appointed. An attorney, representing the owners, offered to Weiss his moiety—namely, $7,500, if he would withdraw his opposition to the remission of the forfeiture, which, upon being paid the money, he agreed to do, and the forfeiture was then remitted by the Acting Secretary in such a manner as to be without the apparent connivance of Bristow. These are facts gleaned by your correspondent from responsible persons, who were engaged in the affair, and will testify before a committee of Congress if required. The Commercial Times comes out with an exposé, giving up two columns of its space to documents, &c., in relation to this affair, which creates a great sensation.

THE MOLLY MAGUIRES.

CONFESSION OF A CONVICTED MURDERER—THE ORDER IDENTICAL WITH THE ANCIENT HIBERNIANS.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 5, 1876.

The confession of James Kerrigan, now under sentence for complicity in the Molly Maguire murders, was made public to-day. Kerrigan acknowledges having been a member of the Molly Maguire Society, and says the object of that organization was to kill people and burn down their buildings. Its operations are carried on under a charter granted to the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Kerrigan details the plans made for the killing of the policeman Yost, at Tamaqua, and of John P. Jones, near Summit Hill, showing that these murders were the result of an order issued by the Molly Maguires.

ELECTION RESULTS.

THE CHOICE OF GOVERNOR IN RHODE ISLAND LEFT WITH THE LEGISLATURE—LIPPITT'S PROBABLE ELECTION—A REPUBLICAN SECRETARY OF STATE.

PROVIDENCE, April 5, 1876.

The State election to-day resulted in the choice of the republican candidate for Secretary of State, who was supported by prohibitionists, by a very large majority; but there was no choice for Governor and Lieutenant Governor by the people. Henry Lippitt, the present Governor, was the nominee of the republicans; Albert Howard was nominated by the prohibitionists (and supported by republicans opposed to Lippitt on personal grounds), and William B. Beach was nominated by the democrats.

GOVERNOR TO BE CHOSEN BY THE LEGISLATURE.

The majority against Governor Lippitt last year was 6,300, and he was elected by the Legislature. This year the majority against him has been considerably reduced, and he has a large plurality. This city, which last year gave 1,428 against Lippitt, now gives him a majority, and the regular republican Assembly ticket is elected in this city by about 500 majority. Lippitt will be elected by the Legislature, which will be about five-sixths republican, and it is understood largely in favor of the election of Henry B. Anthony to the United States Senate for a fourth term.

THE RETURNS.

The Journal has returns from all towns in the State except two small ones. Lippitt, republican, has 8,212 votes; Howard, prohibitionist, 6,227, and Beach, democrat, 3,472.

Lippitt will lack about 1,400 of election by the people.

For Secretary of State Addeman, republican, has 14,653; Pierce, democrat, 3,681, and is elected by about 11,000 majority.

The other candidates on the republican State ticket run about even with the Governor, and will be elected by the General Assembly, which will comprise in the Senate 27 republicans and 9 democrats, and in the House 63 republicans and 9 democrats.

The city of Providence gave:—

Lippitt	3,465
Howard	2,263
Beach	790

THE FINAL RETURNS FROM CONNECTICUT—DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN THE LEGISLATURE.

HARTFORD, April 5, 1876.

Election returns from nearly every town in the State make the total vote of the State 98,645; of which Robinson (rep.), has 43,621; Ingersoll (dem.), 51,145; Smith (temperance), 1,905, and Atwater (greenback), 1,974.

The Senate stands 18 democrats to 3 republicans, and the House 160 democrats, 84 republicans and 2 independents. The democratic majority on a joint ballot is 89 against 42 last year.

TOWN AND CITY CONTESTS.

FLUSHING.

FLUSHING, L. I., April 5, 1876.

The election at Flushing, L. I., on Tuesday, resulted in the following democratic ticket being elected:—For Supervisor, E. A. Lawrence; Town Clerk, F. T. Whiting; Justice of the Peace, Anthony Miller; for Excise Commissioners, Isaac Poole and Darius Banks. The law and order ticket was defeated.

ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, April 5, 1876.

Of the thirteen Aldermen voted for yesterday the democrats elected six, the republicans four and the independents three. The latter are also democrats. Of the nine school directors voted for the democrats elected five and the republicans four. The people's charter ticket for freeholders has a large majority.

ST. JOSEPH.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., April 5, 1876.

At the municipal election, yesterday, the vote was probably the largest ever polled here. The democrats elected their Mayor and most of their city ticket, with three out of four Councilmen.

TOPEKA.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 5, 1876.

At the city election, yesterday, the republicans elected their Mayor, and probably all of their city ticket.

A WHITE VICTORY IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, April 5, 1876.

John Agnew, brother of the New York tea merchant, has been elected Mayor of this city. Seven of the Council are white conservatives for the first time since reconstruction. There is great rejoicing.

THE INDEPENDENT PARTY.

A NATIONAL INDEPENDENT CONVENTION ORGANIZING—REPEAL OF THE RESUMPTION ACT DENIED.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5, 1876.

At a meeting of the Independent National Committee, held to-day at the Tremont House, in this city, the political situation was fully discussed and the following preamble and resolution adopted:—

In view of the failure of the present democratic House of Representatives and republican Senate of the United States to repeal the odious and oppressive Resumption act of January 14, 1875, and to devise further financial relief to the suffering industries of the country, thus disappointing the just expectations of a long suffering people, and in view of the alarming developments of fraud, bribery and official corruption that pervades and debauches every branch of the public service, menacing the very existence of free institutions; therefore

Resolved, That the National Executive Committee of the Independent party do earnestly appeal to the people of the United States in every State to organize and send delegates to the National Independent Convention to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., May 17th, 1876, as the only hope of securing that just financial legislation and pure government which is indispensable to their welfare.

THE STORM.

TWENTY INCHES OF SNOW—A DANGEROUS FRESHET ANTICIPATED.

BOSTON, April 5, 1876.

Reports from all points north and east indicate that the storm of yesterday was the severest of the season. Snow fell in parts of Maine and New Hampshire to the depth of twenty inches. This morning there was not a single telegraph wire working east. All have been repaired to-day, however. If a sudden thaw follows, a most disastrous freshet must ensue. The tides to-day are reported unusually high, and Old Orchard Beach Maine, it is feared, and several summer cottages, may be swept away.

STEAMBOAT BLOWN ASHORE.

PROVIDENCE, April 5, 1876.

The steamboat Metropolis, laid up in Newport Harbor, was blown adrift by the gale, and went ashore near the Poorhouse.

STOPPAGE OF TRAINS.

LITTLE ROCK, April 5, 1876.

On account of the overflow between Madison and Memphis the through trains on that road are suspended. Four trains a week will be run, connecting with boats at Madison.

THE MISSISSIPPI RISING.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 5, 1876.

The river rose an inch, and is now thirty-four feet and eleven inches, or half an inch above the flood of 1874 and eleven inches above that of last August, and the general impression among river men is that it will rise a foot more, which will put it above the highest water known.

MIDNIGHT WEATHER REPORT.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,
WASHINGTON, April 6—1 A. M.

Probabilities.

For Thursday in the South Atlantic and Eastern Gulf States, Tennessee and the Ohio Valley, rising barometer, northwest winds and clear weather with low followed by higher temperature.

For the Western Gulf States falling barometer, northeast winds and cooler, rainy, followed by clearing weather.

For the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys stationary, followed by falling barometer, southwest to southeast winds and warmer, clear weather.

For the lake region rising barometer, westerly winds and warmer, clear or clearing weather.

For the Middle Atlantic States, warmer southeast veering to cooler northwest winds, rising barometer and partly cloudy or clear weather.

For New England diminishing northeast, shifting to cooler westerly winds, stationary barometer and temperature, with cloudy weather.

The Mississippi River continues above the danger line from Cairo to Vicksburg.

THE WEATHER YESTERDAY.

The following record will show the changes in the temperature for the past twenty-four hours in comparison with the corresponding date of last year, as indicated by the thermometer at Hudnut's Pharmacy, HERALD Building:—

	1875.	1876.		1875.	1876.
3 A. M.	37	38	3:30 P. M.	61	52

MURDER BY MASKED ROBBERS.

A DEED OF BLOOD IN A PENNSYLVANIA VILLAGE—STRUGGLE WITH BURGLARS—A WOMAN BEATEN TO DEATH.

ATHENS, Pa., April 5, 1876.

Intelligence has been received here of a tragedy which was enacted in Tuscarora, this county, on Saturday night, the particulars of which are as follows:—

A man named George Houser and his sister Ann, both middle-aged people, had lived for several years together in Tuscarora, their house being removed some distance from any neighbors. About ten o'clock on Saturday night, they having retired, they were aroused by a crash in the rear part of the house. Houser ran from his room to the kitchen, and his sister sprang from her bed and followed him. They were at once seized by two men. Houser grappled with his assailant, but being unarmed was soon overpowered, the burglar hammering him almost senseless with a club or some other blunt weapon. He says that he heard his sister scream twice, when she was silenced, he supposed, by blows from the ruffian who had seized her. There was no light in the room, but the robber bound his arms and feet, and in a short time lighted a lamp. They then tied him to one bedpost, and his sister, who was apparently unconscious and was bleeding like himself from a wound in her head, to another. The men were masked, and their voices strange. After securing the brother and sister to the bed, they commenced ransacking the house.

THE BOOTY.

Mr. Houser had $300 in a bureau drawer, which the burglars secured, besides some jewelery belonging to his sister and a gold watch. After rummaging through the house for half an hour, the robbers put out the light, and left without paying any further attention to their victims. Houser says that when they tied his sister to the bedpost she was groaning faintly, but that she ceased soon afterward. He had a handkerchief tied tightly about his mouth, and could make no outcry.

About nine o'clock Sunday morning a man driving by Houser's place saw that the back door was open and a heavy piece of timber lay across the sill. He jumped from his wagon and went into the house, and found the inmates in the situation described above. Mr. Houser was very faint from loss of blood, and his sister was covered with blood, and was to all outward appearances dead. They were speedily unbound and placed in bed, and the gentleman started post haste for aid.

A DOCTOR WAS SUMMONED,

who succeeded in reviving Miss Heuser, but she could not be restored to consciousness. Her head was crushed by the blows she had received, and she lived but a few hours. Her brother was badly beaten about the head, but his injuries were confined to ugly scalp wounds.

The affair created a great excitement, and parties started out in search of the murderers, but no trace of them had at last accounts been found. The boldness of this outrage has no parallel in the records of crime in this State. The road passing Houser's house is much travelled, and especially so Saturday nights.

FALL OF A WALL.

THE FRONT OF AN OLD TENEMENT TUMBLES INTO THE STREET—SEVERAL PERSONS SEVERELY HURT.

At six o'clock last evening the front of the four story tenement house located at No. 211 Division street fell out upon the sidewalk, severely injuring several children who were playing in the vicinity and inflicting slight hurts upon various people who chanced to be passing when the wall crashed down. It appears that the building, which is an old structure, was some time since thought not sufficiently safe, and the owner, Mr. Daniel Woolf, had already set men at work to take it down. The roof and upper story had been removed and the workmen were leaving the building yesterday evening when a few bricks falling from above attracted their attention. A moment later the whole of the front came down with a crash into the street. The weight of the fire escapes had loosened the coping, and when the house was partially gutted the strain upon the front wall was sufficient to bring it down.

Immediately after the accident assistance was sent for, and the ruins were removed, as it was thought that some passers by might have been buried in them, but it appears that no one was directly underneath at the moment when the wall came down, and the only severe injuries inflicted were those caused by desultory bricks. Among the children dangerously hurt are the following:—William Laug, aged fourteen, of No. 3 Hester street; William Schell, aged nineteen, of No. 4 Hester street; both of whom sustained fractures of the skull, and whose condition when taken to Bellevue Hospital was precarious. Jacob Abrams, aged fourteen, of No. 5 Hester street, sustained a scalp wound and was taken to his home.

FINE ARTS.

SALE OF OIL AND WATER COLOR PAINTINGS AT MATHEWS' TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

A sale of paintings by American and foreign artists commences at noon to-day at Mathews' gallery, 47 and 49 Liberty street. One of the most important pictures on the first day's sale is a view of "Niagara Falls in 1862," by T. B. Thorpe. The entire circuit is shown in this picture, and it includes both American and Canadian shores and falls and an extended view of the rapids and river below, through which the little Maid of the Mist dances fearlessly. "A View in Colorado," by Harvey Young, is a powerful piece of landscape painting. There are good works by C. B. Coman, William Huston, R. L. Pyne, George Maynard, Pope, A. Cary Smith, Blakelock, L. B. Culver, Silna, Thorn, T. L. Smith, D. M. Carver, Clinton Ogilvie, J. J. Hammer W. F. De Haas, J. G. Brown, William Hart, Mrs. Beers, Edward Gay, Caséleer, Julian Scott, Moran, P. P. Ryder, C. P. Ream, Sonntag, Bricher; "The Last Will of Isabella," by Carreno; "Lady's Toilet," by Marston Ream, and examples of Gilbert Munger, T. Addison Richards, Albert Ivsley, Alexander Knight; "Waiting," by John Daw; "Little Marguerite," by Schuschardt, and many others. Among the water colors are many which were in the water color exhibition at the Academy and a number by English and Spanish artists.

M. Brown, $70; "Grandpa's Story," Farrel, $60; "Chancellor and Miss Flite," E. Radford, $100; "Cats' Cancan," Miss Ludlow, $36. The remainder of the pictures will be sold to-morrow evening at the same place and hour, and will comprise the best works in the collection.

EXHIBITION OF THE PAINTINGS, &C., IN THE COLLECTION OF THE LATE WILLIAM T. BLODGETT.

The art gallery of the late William T. Blodgett will be opened for public exhibition at Kurtz' Gallery, April 17, and the entire collection will be sold at auction by Robert Somerville at Chickering Hall, April 27. There are in the collection examples of the French, German, Roman, Spanish, English and American schools, their representatives being Rosa Bonheur, Troyon, Meissonier, Gerome, Diaz, Contare, Schreyer, Dupre, Daubigny, Barquerreau, Merle, Brion, Ed. Frere, Robert Fluery, Ziem, &c. Church's "Heart of the Andes" and W. W. Story's marble statue, "Semiramis," are among the specimens of the American school of art.

HOTEL ARRIVALS.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, April 5—6 P. M.

The bulls, which raged as furiously last evening as if they possessed the eminent domain in a succession of china shops, turned out to be a short-horned lot after all.

Commencing at yesterday's prices the market was fairly steady for the moment, but speedily commenced to yield, and finally wound up in the same sickly condition that has characterized it for days back. Lake Shore, which was the head and front of yesterday's rise, opened bravely at 61, but from that point gradually fell off to the closing figure of 59¾. Erie, Western Union and Pacific Mail followed suit, though in a less important way, and the only trumps in the pack were in the hands of the St. Paul fancies, which, after scoring higher figures at one time, finally closed the game a fraction ahead of the opening.

The whole hoist in the market was founded upon intimidation, and feeble bears bore the brunt of the attack. In fact, each day's business is but the record of a petty struggle between the opposing animals, and the situation continues flat enough until Taurus Maximus or Ursus Major, tired of inactivity, makes a dash at his feeble adversary. So the "spring rise," which some of the hopeful thought they had discovered in yesterday's advance, turned out to be little better than a scare on the part of ephemeral shorts, who were driven to cover like Renard when "Tray, Blanche and Sweetheart" are on his trail and the scent lies hot. In a word, the market is a market of hucksters, and dealings are of the most retail description. Meanwhile, the wealthy and powerful operators keep aloof and content themselves with an occasional swoop upon the quarry (as did yesterday) with a tremendous scattering of feathers and a satisfactory securing of prey. So adolescent bears and bulls low and growl in a youthful fashion and daily fall victims to their insatiate foes.

Pacific Mail seems to be thoroughly waterlogged, and sunk down to-day to 18, the lowest figure in its history. No amount of pumping, with all hands at the brakes, seems to be of avail to keep the storm-beaten vessel afloat, and it appears to be only a question of time when the unfortunate craft will sink utterly out of sight.

Holders of New Jersey Central were not so anxious to keep their grip of their favorite investment, and a goodly lot of long stock appeared for sale, with the result of reducing quotations to par ex dividend. The company deserves the credit at least of making an apparently fair and square exhibit of its condition (albeit a somewhat disappointing one); but stockholders generally will want much stronger reasons before abandoning faith in one of the best managed roads in the country.

Western Union fell off from 68 to 68⅛, in sympathy with the rest of the market, but did not exhibit any special features. The prohibition obtained in Philadelphia yesterday against a further increase of poles and wires in the public streets may find its imitation in this and other large cities; but so far no effect has been produced upon the stock.

We have noticed the features of individual active stocks and pass others by as dull and unattractive. In a single sentence we have simply to state that the market opened full of hopes and closed with disappointment.

MINING NEWS.

The bullion shipped by the Consolidated Virginia mine during the last two weeks amounted to $2,100,000.

Rich discoveries are reported in the Yellow Jacket silver mine, on 1,940-foot level; also in the Gold Hill, Justice, Imperial and Mexican mines, all of which are on the Comstock lode. In the Imperial mine all the ore found for several years past has been of too poor a quality to pay the cost of mining and reduction. Last fall, however, it yielded $50 per ton, and has steadily continued to increase in richness until the present time, when it is now found to produce $487, $160, $137, $118, $97 and $77 per ton.

The Anglo-Californian Bank of San Francisco has paid a semi-annual gold dividend of 5 per cent. This bank incurred no losses in the panic at San Francisco last autumn.

The Black Bear Quartz Mining Company, of San Francisco, paid its fifty-second dividend last Wednesday.

The time for placing the stock of the Consolidated Imperial Mining Company upon the lists of the San Francisco Stock Exchange has been postponed until May next. The capital is $50,000,000.

The price of a seat in the San Francisco Stock Exchange has advanced to $35,000.

COTTON ON THE SPOT DULL—FUTURES FIRM—FLOUR UNCHANGED—WHEAT STEADY—CORN FIRM—OATS DULL AND LOWER—WHISKEY QUIET—PORK HEAVY—LARD FIRM—PETROLEUM NOMINAL—SPIRITS TURPENTINE STEADY—ROSIN FIRM—OILS UNCHANGED—FREIGHTS DULL, MORE ACTIVE, BUT EASIER—COFFEE STRONG—SUGAR STEADY.

WEDNESDAY, April 5—6 P. M.

There was but little stir in mercantile circles to-day, the market being all but universally dull while prices varied but little. On 'Change business was light in nearly every description of merchandise therein dealt in. Flour showed no quotable change in prices. Wheat closed steady after opening dull and heavy. Corn was scarce and firm. Oats were dull. Pork heavy. Lard firm. Whiskey firmer. Cotton on the spot dull. Futures closed firm. Petroleum easier. Spirits turpentine lower. Rosin firmer. Freights were a little more active, but easy. Coffee was strong. Oils were unchanged. Sugar was steady.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazils was firm but quiet. Mild coffee was steady but quiet. We quote:—Ordinary cargoes, 16c. a 16¼c.; fair do., 17¾c. a 18c.; good do., 18¼c. a 18½c.; prime do., 18¾c. a 19c.; extreme range for lots, 15¾c. a 20c.; Santos, fair to good, 17¾c. a 18⅞c., gold, ninety days; Java, government bags, 22c. a 24c.; do., grass mats, 22c. a 25c.; Singapore, do., 18½c. a 20c.; Ceylon, 17½c. a 19c.; Maracaibo, 16c. a 18½c.; Laguayra, 17½c. a 18½c.; Jamaica, 16½c. a 18c.; St. Domingo, 15c. a 15½c.; Porto Rico, 17c. a 18c.; Costa Rica, 17c. a 18½c.; Macassar, 18½c. a 19½c.; Mexican, 17c. a 18c.; Manila, 17c. a 18c.; Angostura, 17c. a 18c.; Savanilla, 16c. a 18c.; Curacoa, 16c. a 17c.

COTTON.—The market for spot was dull, but prices were unchanged. Futures closed firm. The closing prices to-day compare with Tuesday's closing prices as follows:—

COMMISSIONERS OF DEEDS.

Several prominent lawyers of this city have drafted a bill, which will shortly be submitted to the Legislature, increasing the number of Commissioners of Deeds for the county of New York from 300 to 500. It is claimed that the present number is not sufficient for the transaction of all the business required. The number is now the same as in 1854, when the population of this city was less than 600,000. It is claimed that the number of Commissioners of Deeds should equal the number of Notaries Public.

HUNTER'S POINT STENCHES.

FURTHER INVESTIGATION BY THE HEALTH COMMITTEE YESTERDAY—NECESSITY FOR A STRINGENT LAW DEMONSTRATED.

The Committee on Public Health, appointed by the Assembly to investigate the condition of the petroleum refineries and superphosphate works of Hunter's Point and other localities adjacent to the city, began their undertaking yesterday morning. The party, consisting of Drs. Russell, Wure, Hammond, Nelson and Crosby, accompanied by their attorney, left their hotel at an early hour and first visited the slaughtering establishments along the East River front. They proceeded to the foot of Forty-fourth street, to the house of Messrs. Rafferty & Williams, dealers in fertilizing supplies, &c., and were astonished at the stench and filth which pervaded the place, and they expressed their disgust at what they saw. As the proprietors had been entirely unaware of their coming they were taken by surprise, which gave the committee a fine opportunity of seeing the wretched manner in which the business is carried on. No care seemed to be taken to subdue the sickening odors which escape from the place and find their way all over New York.

Many neighboring slaughter houses were also found in an exceedingly bad condition. The committee then proceeded to Hunter's Point and visited the petroleum refineries of the Standard Oil Company and made a thorough examination. In the centre of the great yard they found themselves surrounded with tanks and smoke stacks, each of which contributed its part to the foul atmosphere that hung around the neighborhood. The yard was filled with pools of dark, greasy water, and the smell was very bad, and could not entirely proceed from crude petroleum. The process of cleansing the oil is carried on in an immense tank, where they saw the oil being washed with oil of vitriol, and they saw the latter, after gathering up all the impurities of the petroleum, running from the bottom of the tank by a race to a large compartment in the ground. The sludge acid, as this refuse is called, sometimes was dark and heavy, sometimes pale and thin, and at other times blue and green, and a stench that was positively sickening came from it. It was impossible to stand anywhere near it for even a short time, while the fumes arising from it could be recognized for miles around. Dr. Russell, in his haste to to get away from it, ran over a barrel that was buried underground, the covering of which partly gave way under his weight so that one leg was almost wholly submerged. When he was pulled out he was minus a gum shoe, and it is highly probable that the Doctor took away with him a sample of some of the perfumes.

The committee spent about an hour in the yards, examining all the machinery, tanks and processes with the most minute care, and took full notes of everything they saw. When they left the place the odors seemed to follow them, and they freely gave expression to their opinions.

Leaving the establishment of the Standard Oil Company, they next visited the phosphate factory of Mr. E. Frank Coe. Some intimation must have been given that the committee intended to visit the place, for workmen were seen spreading ashes over some of the worst places, and in trying to improve the condition of the inside yard. Passing in over the old and rotten plank wagon drive, the committee at once entered the rickety sheds in which the superphosphates are prepared. No words can describe the horrible odors of the place. Some of the doctors could not enter the sheds at all. Huge heaps of fertilizers were piled up everywhere, and men were seen shovelling the disagreeable dust into bags and barrels. Heaped dried scrap fish were also seen, and the atmosphere was actually so nauseating that one of the party was made sick by it. The buildings are very long and very much out of repair. Passing out from these sheds the party saw the large receptacles in which the sludge is kept. Mr. Coe buys this stinking stuff from the refineries and consumes more than 182,500 gallons of it per year. The committee hurried away as soon as possible, and adjourned to a room near by. As they were leaving they asked Mr. Coe whether he did not think that his superphosphates could be manufactured with less stench. He replied, "Yes, and I'll do it when the proper time comes," evidently meaning that he would do so when the law absolutely compelled him. One of the physicians remarked that it is without exception the most sickening and disgusting shed I was ever in. "I verily believe" said he "it is the worst place on earth."

The committee sent out for Mr. Rudolph, of the Long Island City Board of Health, who, upon being questioned, said:—

"No complaints have ever, to my knowledge, been made by the members of any other Board of Health to our own board that the works you have just visited were nuisances. The citizens of this city, however, have complained to us respecting Mr. Coe's place, and three months ago we made an examination of it, but three experts that we engaged returned us the opinion that the place was not an unhealthy one. It is my opinion, however, that Mr. Coe, if he wanted, could manufacture with less disagreeable smells."

"Mr. Rudolph," said Dr. Wurtz, "I was informed this morning by a party residing in New York that sometimes late at night he has been compelled to get out of bed and shut down his windows to keep out the frightful atmosphere that proceeds from this neighborhood. Can you tell me why?"

"Well, sometimes Mr. Coe and some of the oil refiners run their works all night. We have compelled Mr. Coe, however, to work only in the day time. There is a large element of the population here that is very friendly to Mr. Coe and resist any effort we might make to have his establishment condemned as a nuisance."

The Board then proceeded to Newtown Creek, where they engaged a tug. Along the banks of the creek are located many establishments, in which are manufactured phosphates, glues, &c., and from which proceed those awful perfumes which in the summer months render some parts of New York almost uninhabitable. As the little tug steamed rapidly along, it passed a number of flat boats loaded with manure and offal, so that the passage was of the most disagreeable kind.

The first landing made was at Preston's dock. The establishment is very large and very varied in its appointments. After literally wading through sloughs of filth, the party entered the works. The passage leading in was abominable. It was a conglomeration of mud, fertilizers and broken bits of bone, while from the black pipers a thin shower of dark dust was falling, which settled on everything around and discolored it. At the rear of the entrance was a regular Golgotha, for piled up in one tier after another were hundreds of grinning skulls, the last remains of horses and cows. Here, too, were a series of sheds under which were heaped superphosphates of many different colors, all of which emitted their peculiar odors, which in some instances compelled several of the doctors to withdraw. There were other sheds filled with guano and other sheds filled with hoofs and horns, from which men could be seen busily engaged in the manufacture of glue, the smell from which is almost as sickening as that from the phosphates. There was, however, in the air one smell more noticeable than all the others, and with which the committee had not before come in contact. It was easily traced to a bone boiling and bone sawing apartment near by. Here, under the foulest conditions of filth and stench, a large number of men were seen busily engaged in their unwholesome occupation. The room was filled with steam, and was intensely hot. Bones were boiling in numerous pots, which one by one were taken out and scraped.

It is impossible to describe the sickening, overpowering stench which this process creates, and which is free to escape and polute the air for miles around.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

The other places visited were of the same nature as those described above. As soon as the examination was over the little tug passed down Newtown Creek to the river, and thence proceeded to Fulton street, Brooklyn.

"It is a revelation to me," said one of the doctors to the HERALD reporter. "I had no idea of the careless and indifferent manner in which these operators conduct their business. They seem to have no regard whatever for the comfort or health of the people around them. It seems to me almost criminal for them to create an atmosphere such as they do when they could conduct their business, if they cared, in a manner that would not be offensive. I do not wonder that the uptown people in New York are up in arms against this outrage. It would be a deplorable circumstance if the bill framed to condemn these places, as they exist at present, should be defeated."

LIGHTHOUSES AND BUOYS.

NEW YORK, April 5, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Your issue of to-day contains a short editorial on the subject of buoys and laying the blame of neglect in their replacement principally on the "idle clerks." For such a charge there is absolutely no ground, and your nautical editor in making it must have been prompted by one of those "busybody-thankless," fresh-water mariners whom the Times not long since described as the "editors' pest." One of these theoretical navigators a few months ago sailed into the higher powers of the lighthouse service, but found to his cost that he was butting a ram and got himself most incontinently keeled over. Now either he or one of his fleet of "puddle ducks" is after the poor tenders of the frigate that blew him out of the water; but 'tis a stern chase, and we are to windward. For a district of 130 lights and 500 buoys and beacons there is a clerical force of two clerks and a storekeeper. Now, sir, to attend to all the correspondence, accounts and supplying which such an establishment creates, and to disburse for the benefit of the service throughout the country (in a subordinate capacity to the office of the Lighthouse Board) about $500,000 annually, will any reasonable man say that this force is too much, or even enough? We work hard, as our chiefs can testify, at a daily average of nine hours, and this does not look as if we were idle clerks. You know, sir, that the lighthouse service is above all reproach, whether regard be had to its efficiency, its administration or its economy. This is known, too, to the growlers whose stereotyped text of "buoys adrift" is like the cry of "wolf" in the ancient fable. But, then, their itch for writing is appeased, and is utilized to save them from the impending reproach of being "idle officials." Buoys will once in a while go adrift; but I assure you that since the advent of the present inspector, a single buoy in this whole district, extending through four States, has not been out of place for one hour longer than was unavoidable. I trust that, in justice, you will insert this from

STATEN ISLAND.

OBITUARY.

DANIEL DUNGLAS HOME, THE SPIRITUALIST.

A cable telegram from Paris, under date of the 5th inst., reports as follows:—"The Siecle states that Mr. Home, the prominent spiritualist, died suddenly on Saturday while travelling on the railway from St. Petersburg to Berlin."

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Mr. Home was born in Scotland, near to Edinburgh, on the 20th of March, in the year 1833. He was, consequently, forty-three years of age at the time of his decease. He has probably attracted as much of public interest, of a peculiar kind, within a few years as has ever before any other person of his age. When a child he was adopted by an aunt, with whom he came to America when he was nine years of age. Spiritual manifestations it has been claimed, attended him from his infancy. The earliest, however, within his own recollection was a remarkable vision of a deceased playmate, which occurred in his fourteenth year. At the age of seventeen he was publicly known as a spiritual medium. This notoriety was unpleasant to his family, and was accepted by him against their wishes. In those days he moved his residence frequently, going from Troy to Newburgh, N. Y.; to Lebanon, Conn., and to Springfield, Mass. Many remarkable manifestations of the spirit power took place during his residence at the last named place. These manifestations continued to attend Mr. Home during his life. Besides the ordinary phenomena of rapping, table tipping, writing and playing upon musical instruments, they included, in his case, visions seen by the medium, appearances of hands, arms and spirit forms, seen by other persons; "levitation," or the preternatural uplifting of the medium; the elongating and shortening of his body by several inches, and his handling of fire and heated objects without hurt. He experienced occasional intermissions of his power, and these occasions, he said, were beneficial to the general health of his body. Mr. Hume claimed to have performed some very remarkable cures and to have been himself protected from sudden danger. His theories were credited by many of the most enlightened minds, both in America and the Old World. The manifestations have been witnessed by many persons, by crowned heads among others, and contradictory accounts have been published concerning them by different reputable personages. In the year 1853 Home came to New York with the intention to study medicine, but he abandoned the pursuit. Going around he visited many points of the Old World, and had the honor of being presented to the then Czar of Russia, the Emperor of France, and the Pope. When in Rome, in 1856, he united himself in religion with the Catholic Church, and was baptized to the fold. He subsequently met in Rome a Russian lady of noble birth, whom he married in St. Petersburg in the year 1858. This lady bore him a son, born in 1859. She died in Southern France in the year 1862. Mary Howitt and Mrs. S. C. Hall published memorial sketches of the deceased lady. Mr. Home, in the year 1866, became Secretary of the Spiritual Athenæum, a society, in London, for the extension of spiritualism. In the same year he became acquainted with Mrs. Jane Lyon, who conveyed him, by gift and bequest, large sums of money, including the bulk of her property. She subsequently sued for the recovery of her property, and it was restored to her by law. In the year 1871 Mr. Home again married a Russian lady of rank. He has published (1862) an autobiographical work on spiritual manifestations, entitled "Incidents of My Life." This was republished in New York and Paris. A second volume with the same title was brought out in London and New York in 1872, and a third has been announced.

EARL OF SHEFFIELD.

A cable telegram from London, date of this morning, reports as follows:—"The Earl of Sheffield died yesterday, aged seventy-four years." George Augustus Frederick Charles Holroyd, Earl of Sheffield and Viscount Pevensey, was born on the 16th of March, in the year 1802. He inherited the title, as second Earl, on the death of his father, which occurred on the 30th of May, 1821. On the 6th of June, 1825, he married Harriet, eldest daughter of the second Earl of Harewood. In the time of Charles II. his ancestors emigrated to Ireland, having been previously possessed of large wealth in England. The deceased resided at Sheffield Park, Sussex, England.

RICHARD STOCKTON, OF PRINCETON, N. J.

Mr. Richard Stockton, eldest son of the late Commodore Stockton, and brother of ex-Senator John P. Stockton and grandson of Richard Stockton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, died yesterday morning at his home in Princeton, N. J. He was a gradvate of Princeton College, and from an early age became closely identified with the financial department of the Camden and Amboy Railroad and canal companies. He was for many years treasurer of the former. He married a daughter of the late Professor Albert B. Dod, a sister of Mrs. Edwin A. Stevens, of Hoboken. Mr. Stockton never mixed in public life or politics, seemed wedded to his railroad and canal interests and was very reserved and even inclined to be misanthropical in his habits. He was fifty-three years of age.

THEODORE CUYLER, LAWYER.

A despatch from Philadelphia, of the 5th inst., brings the following announcement:—Theodore Cuyler, a prominent member of the Philadelphia Bar and solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the last twenty years, died this morning. He was born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1821, graduated at the Pennsylvania University in 1838 and admitted to the Bar in 1842.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

Mr. Aptommas gives a harp recital this afternoon at Steinway Hall.

To-night at the Tivoli Theatre a benefit will be given to Mr. Moritz N. Silberstein, a popular attaché of this establishment.

The sale of seats for the farewell performances of the Italian opera company commenced yesterday at the Academy of Music.

Titiens called at the White House Sunday evening, at Mrs. Grant's invitation, and sang several songs, Mrs. Fred Grant accompanying her on the piano.

Miss Amy Fay, the pianist, played in Boston recently and achieved a pronounced success by the peculiar refinement, delicacy and sweetness of her style of playing.

The fiftieth consecutive performance of "Brass" passed off brilliantly at the Park Theatre. The scented souvenir programmes were presented to the ladies, Mr. Withers' new "Brass Waltz," written for the occasion, was played with great success, and Mr. Rowe's ubiquitous ring, as usual, created roars of laughter.

FERREOL.

A DEFENCE OF SARDOU'S ORIGINALITY—HISTORICAL REVIEW OF THE PLOT—PAUL PARFAIT, SANDEAU AND DE VEGA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

As the HERALD happens to be the one American journal read in Paris permit me to use its columns in protest against the injustice done to M. Victorien Sardou by several New York critics since the production of that author's new play, "Ferreol," at the Union Square Theatre. These injustices, resembling those which so often greet your own great dramatist, Dion Boucicault, when he produces a new play that delights the town, will, I believe, need only statement to be understood.

The first charge that meets the first performance is that of plagiarism. Sardou is charged by one of the New York dailies with having stolen his story of "Ferreol" from Paul Parfait's novel, "L'Assassin du Bel Antoine." The same journal also charges that the wit of M. Sardou is merely local wit; and that, therefore, his play is shorn of half its beauty by translation. Morally, the first of these charges is the most grave. Artistically, the second is the more important to the fame of an author now recognized as standard in French literature.

Without the slighest desire to defend one of my countrymen by slighting another, I think it no wrong to M. Parfait to recognize the fact that M. Sardou has given in his works, especially in "Seraphine," "Patrie" and "Nos Intimes," evidences of a mental power, of a creative fecundity and of a constructive skill to which the amiable secretary of the late Dumas père would himself be the last to lay claim. The abilities, constructive and creative, of M. Sardou are so universally known that to ordinary people he might need no defence to the charge of having stolen from M. Parfait. Yet with all this admitted, there is a sufficient resemblance between M. Parfait's novel and M. Sardou's play to color a charge which either envy or literary jealousy would fain accept as proven as soon as made.

The novel of M. Parfait was published by Levy Frères in 1873. The "Ferreol" of Sardou was produced in 1875. If the play was stolen from the novel Sardou, therefore, could not hope to escape detection. No complaint of such stealing has been made by M. Parfait. It is but natural to conclude that if Sardou did use Parfait's work he used it with the consent of Parfait. But did he use Parfait's work? Let us see.

The germinal idea of Parfait's plot is the occurrence of a crime during the clandestine visit to a former lover by the wife of the judge who is to investigate the crime. This is nearly the pivotal idea of the play of "Ferreol." But we have precisely the same complication in Jules Sandeau's story, "Un Début dans la Magistrature;" also published by Levy Frères, but published in 1864. Again we have nearly the same complication in one of Gaboriau's novels, "L'Affaire Le Rouge," and an industrious reader of Spanish plays avers the same complication forms the ground work of one of De Vega's innumerable plays.

Where, then, is the evidence that M. Sardou stole the idea from Parfait and not from Sandeau, nor from Gaboriau, nor from De Vega; or shall we say Sandeau stole from De Vega, Gaboriau stole from Sandeau, Parfait stole from Gaboriau and Sardou stole from Parfait? Is it not far more likely that Sardou stole from all four of them? That his combining, constructing mind created "Ferreol" from the ideas evoked in it by reading all of them? But this would be original authorship. Man never created anything save combinations of things already created. The old, old Sphynx is not a creation per se. It is a creation by combination. So we find the character of Ferreol in the play like that of Jules in the novel of Parfait, while Roberte in the play is wholly unlike the Mme. de Marcillac in the same novel, while she is very like the wife of the legist in Sandeau's novel. But Dumartel, the judge in the play, is the very antithesis of either of the judges in Parfait and Sandeau, and from the attributes of Dumartel we may with certainty conclude that he is not a creation of De Vega's. Outside of "Ferreol" we nowhere find the Lavardau of Sardou. So that in "Ferreol" we have an utterly new combination of characters found so combined in no other work named in this relation, all working out a plot which I will now show to be as thoroughly Sardou's as are the characters—new as far as regards the essential point in a play, development.

In Sardou's play the lover visits the judge's wife. So he does in Sandeau's novel; so he does not in Parfait's novel. In the last the wife it is who visits the lover at a public inn. In Sardou's play a murder is committed. No murder is committed in Sandeau's story; a pistol goes off on the escaping lover's person. In Parfait's novel a murder is committed, but the lover does not see it nor know of it, while in the play he does see it and recognizes the criminal. In Parfait's novel the lover is accused of the committal of the murder of which he knows nothing. In Sardou's play he is not suspected, even, nor accused, save by himself. In Parfait's novel the lover finally admits as true the false accusation in order to save the honor of the Judge's wife. But in the play Ferreol accuses himself to save an innocent man, without paying a woman's honor for the salvation. In Sandeau's novel no really innocent man is in danger of conviction; only one guilty of a prior crime. In the play the real murderer is detected by a masterly examination, conducted by experienced lawyers. In Parfait's novel the real criminal is tracked, discovered by the ingenuity of the wife of the Judge working to save her lover. In both Parfait and Sardou the clandestine meeting is found out, but in Sandeau's novel it remains undiscovered by the husband. The noble forgiveness of Dumartel in the play has no counterpart in Sandeau, in Parfait, in Gaboriau, nor in De Vega. In short, in all essentials of his plot Sardou differs at each step from every novelist that has handled the complication, first devised, it would seem, by De Vega. It is more than probable that if neither De Vega, Gaborian, Sandeau nor Parfait had written, Sardou would never have produced "Ferreol." It is more than probable that if nature had not produced a woman and a lioness the Egyptian sculptor never would have produced in the Sphynx an original thing—a combination of both in proportions of his own originating. If the ballad of "Gerunto" had never been written Shylock never would have seen daylight or footlight. If Dumas père had not written "Fernande, the Fallen Angel," his son never would have produced "La Dame aux Camelias." Thus much regarding the charge that M. Sardou plagiarized from M. Paul Parfait, secretary to M. Dumas père. Respectfully,

A FRENCHMAN.

NEW YORK, April 5, 1876.

ARREST OF A STOCK BROKER.

Deputy Sheriff Trim yesterday arrested William Tumbridge, a stock broker, of this city. Patrick Dumien swears that on September 4, 1875, he deposited $500 with Tumbridge, requesting him to purchase 100 shares of Erie stock at $17 per share. Notification was sent on the same day by Tumbridge of the purchase. Plaintiff then sent instructions not to sell without orders from him, and agreed to keep up a margin until the stock fell below $14. Dumien, on Tuesday last, demanded his stock, after having tendered Tumbridge $1,262 72, the sum due after crediting him with interest and commission and debiting him with the $500. A surrender of the stock was refused by Tumbridge. Dumien then procured an order of arrest from Judge McAdam. The prisoner yesterday placed $1,600 in the hands of the Sheriff, the amount of bail called for, and was set at liberty.

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

BARK TEXAS (Ger), Seedorf, for New York, in leaving Bremen March 22 sustained damage to tresseltrees, and had to put back.

BARK INGA (Nor), Panst, from Pensacola for Cardiff, which put into Brest March 16 in distress, was undergoing, March 22, the repairs considered necessary to enable her to proceed to England in tow.

BRIG ABBY CLIFFORD, for New York, which returned to Havre, had been in collision March 23, off Dover, with bark Princessan (Nor). The latter was towed to London 24th with port bow stove.

BRIG PAQUETE DE NOVA YORK (Port), while discharging her ballast yesterday at Lombard street wharf, Philadelphia, capsized at 2 P M, and, with the assistance of tug F A Churchman, righted without damage at 4 P M.

BRIG SPRING BIRD (Br), Hassell, from New York March 8 for Rio Janeiro, has put into St Kitts dismasted and leaking. She was discharging by order of surveyors; part of the cargo damaged. The vessel would be condemned, as the estimated cost of repairs was $12,000.

SCHR HELEN J HOLWAY, ashore at Fire Island, is reported full of water. The Coast Wrecking Company are at work on her saving cargo. The following are the names of the lost:—Lafayette Thompson, captain; Frederick Huntley, first mate; Frank Foster, second mate; Albert Card, cook; Thos W Gray and Chas Colbath, seamen.

SCHR LITTLE DAVID, before reported ashore on Berretta's Point, near Hell Gate, still lies there, and is in a very bad condition. Eight or nine of her bottom planks have dropped down, and she fills with every tide. The wreckers will go to work on her to-day, and her captain has hopes of getting her afloat in three or four days.

SCHR GEM OF THE OCEAN, of Portland, reported ashore at Cape Porpoise in the recent gale, was sold to Seth Pinkham, who has succeeded in getting her off in fair condition, and will repair and fit her for the Bank fishery.

SCHR D E KELLY (of Dennis) ran ashore at Rockport, Mass, April 5. Crew taken off by the lifeboat.

OVERDUE—Schr Mary A Holt, from Key West for New York, was due about the time of the great gale, and it is feared she went down in that storm. She was owned in Ellsworth, where her master, Capt Grant, belonged.

BOSTON, April 5—Schr Ida Bell, with cargo of ice from Hamilton Island for New York, went ashore on east side of Cape Cod on Tuesday night. The vessel and cargo are a total loss. The crew were all saved but the mate, who was lost. He belonged in Easthampton, Long Island.

A large unknown brig, with loss of foremast and with jury mast rigged, was seen on Wednesday lying at anchor off Marshfield.

A lot of wrecked stuff was washed ashore on Cape Cod which leads to the supposition that an oyster vessel was lost at that point in the storm.

At Provincetown the schooner E Nickerson, that collided with the White Swan off Chatham on Sunday night, while lying at the railroad wharf, received damages from which she sunk.

Schr White Swan broke her moorings at the railroad wharf, drifting head on, going nearly through the steamboat wharf, damaging the vessel and wharf to a considerable extent.

Fishing schr Czar, of Harwich, is sunk near the steamboat wharf.

Schr Arthur Clifford had her stern badly damaged.

There are several other small vessels that parted their moorings and came ashore, but are damaged only slightly.

BATH, Me, April 5—The 3-masted schr Henry H Fisk, coal laden, from New York March 17, was seen off Chatham on the evening of the 20th ult, since which time nothing has been heard of her. It is believed she went down with all on board in the gale of that date. The schooner was built here in 1872, of 259 tons burden and was considered a fine vessel. No insurance.

HALIFAX, NS, April 5—A heavy southeast gale has prevailed here the past 24 hours. A number of vessels are awaiting a cessation of the storm before going to sea.

NEWBURYPORT, April 5—The hull of a vessel of about 200 tons is to be seen on Salisbury Point. The storm prevents communication.

NEWPORT, April 5—Steamer Metropolis, belonging to the Old Colony Steamboat Company, and laid up in upper harbor, dragged her anchors during the blow last night and went broadside on the rocks opposite the asylum. A contract has been made with John Waters & Son to get her off.

LAUNCHED—At Essex, April 1, a fine model schr of 160 tons, owned by Messrs D C & H Babson, and will be commanded by Capt Charles J Lawson, formerly of schr Nulli Secondus.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.
